autumn

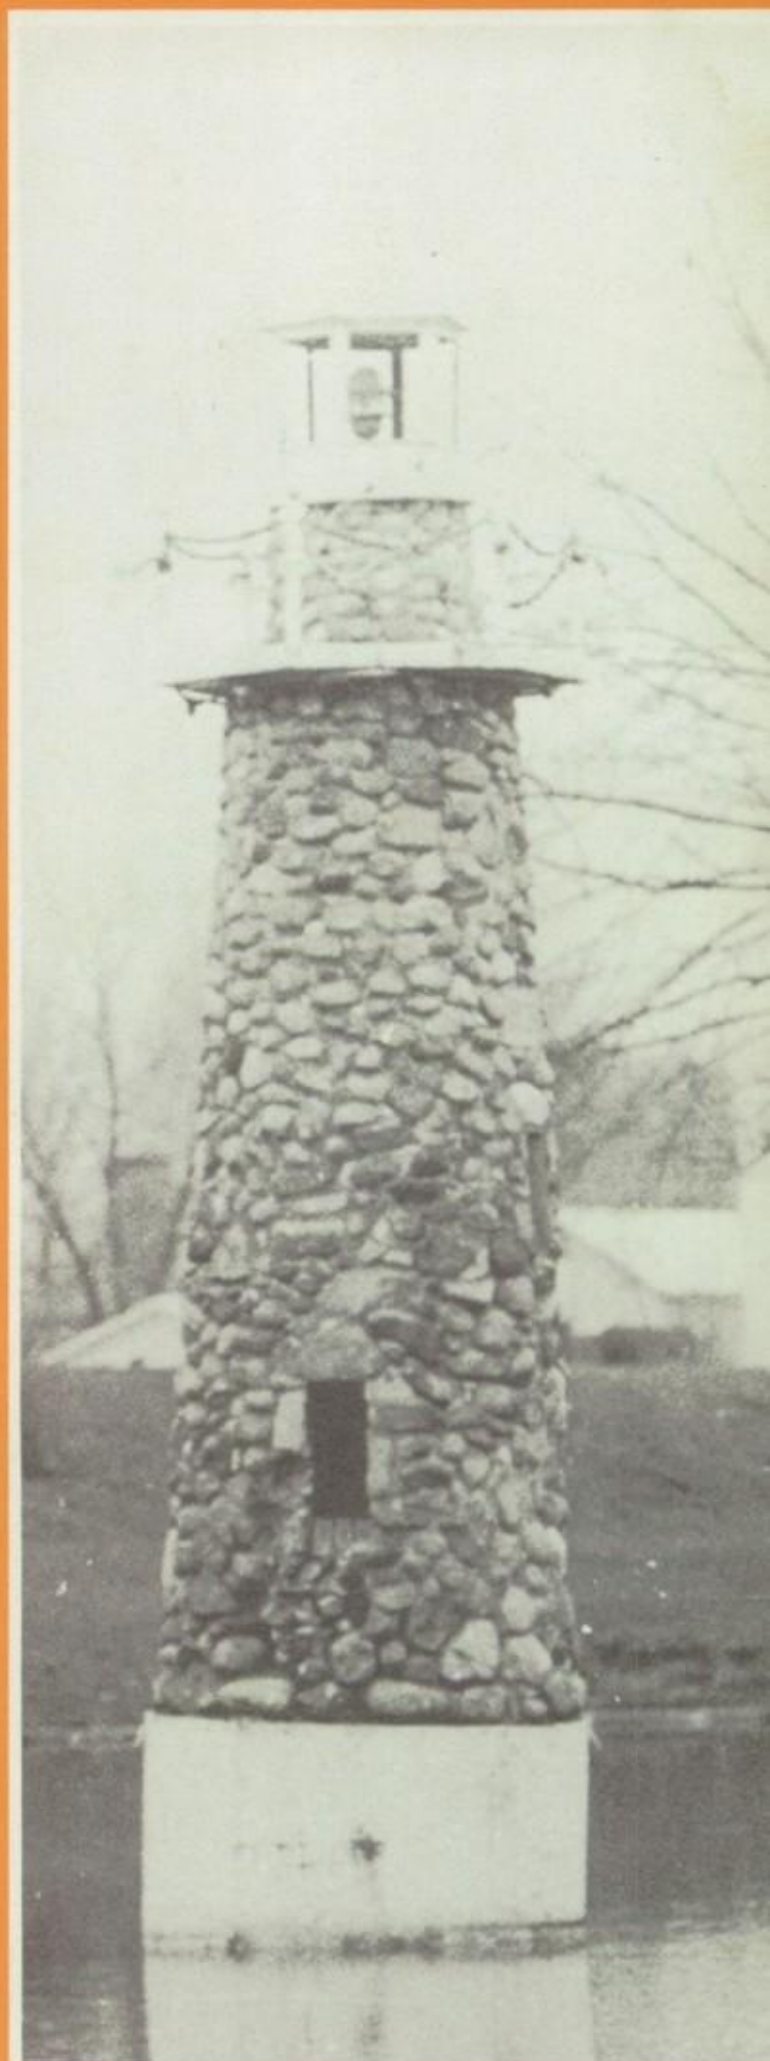

Seasonal changes demand adjustments in life styles and conveniently become the time when most changes are begun. Autumn brings with it cool nights and leaf filled yards. The free time of summer is replaced with schedules, routines of bells, evenings filled with homework.

Interests are again aroused in competition and students become aware of issues important to them, evident by their involvement and participation in national and community elections and environmental conditions. Autumn is appreciated but, excitement rises as a new season approaches.

The activities of winter accelerate and students keep active in many areas. The Arabian scores, basketball, swimming, and wrestling are followed closely. Man's abuse of his own environment is a major topic of discussion. Recreational activities included skating, sledding, and playing in the snow.

The holiday season lends its colored lights, sparkling tinsel and wishes for "Peace on earth" to remind man that he has finished another year; it is the time of year when men believe that they may begin anew.

Winter melts into spring and life rejuvenates itself. The fresh air and greenness of a new spring creates restlessness within each individual. Plagued with chilly days and torrents of rain, students' thoughts roam from the school's closed walls to plans for spring vacation.

The effects of national events are so great that PHHS students remain involved and breathe relief when seemingly impossible problems are solved. Emotions run high; problems of winter are felt less; sunny, warm days are welcomed; positive is the word.

Student Life

A single student can sometimes escape the boundaries of the classroom by letting his thoughts wonder through the sanctums of the real and the imaginary. While the student may find it difficult to concentrate on a full hour of the Napoleonic Wars, he can probably take refuge in the fact that it is only 10 more minutes till lunch, play practice, an all-school pep session, or some other activity that will take him away from his papers and his textbooks.

Hopefully, the new beginnings that stem from the student's life, inside and outside the classroom, will be carried with him through his adult life.

RIGHT: Patches on jeans became an everyday sight when the dress code changed and reflected the student's personality.

BELOW: Which is Which? There was a change in pace at PHHS when the dress code was abolished and boys hair styles lengthened.

BELOW RIGHT: "Bench warmers" are found in the main hall during idle times of the day to "catch up" on the latest gossip or just to relax and watch the passers go by.

Fashions vary at great lengths; dress code abolished

Fashions are like memories. The years go on but the styles make flashbacks from time to time. The midi made a comeback along with the maxi in pushing out the image of the mini.

Baggies and palazzo pants really had it on, topped off with the layered look in the loudest prints to the softest pastels.

For guys, cuffed flares and heeled shoes fit in with the fashion's trend. Longer hair styles seemed to be what was happening at PHHS.

Students felt that the more lenient the apparel the better they were able to study. The gals found that pants helped on those cold and chilly days and were even more of an aid when it came to studying and participating in school activities.

Parade, dance, game, create excitement

During the week of October 2, excitement arose as Homecoming festivities grew nearer. Dressing in "school attire", Arabians showed their enthusiasm in preparing for the big event.

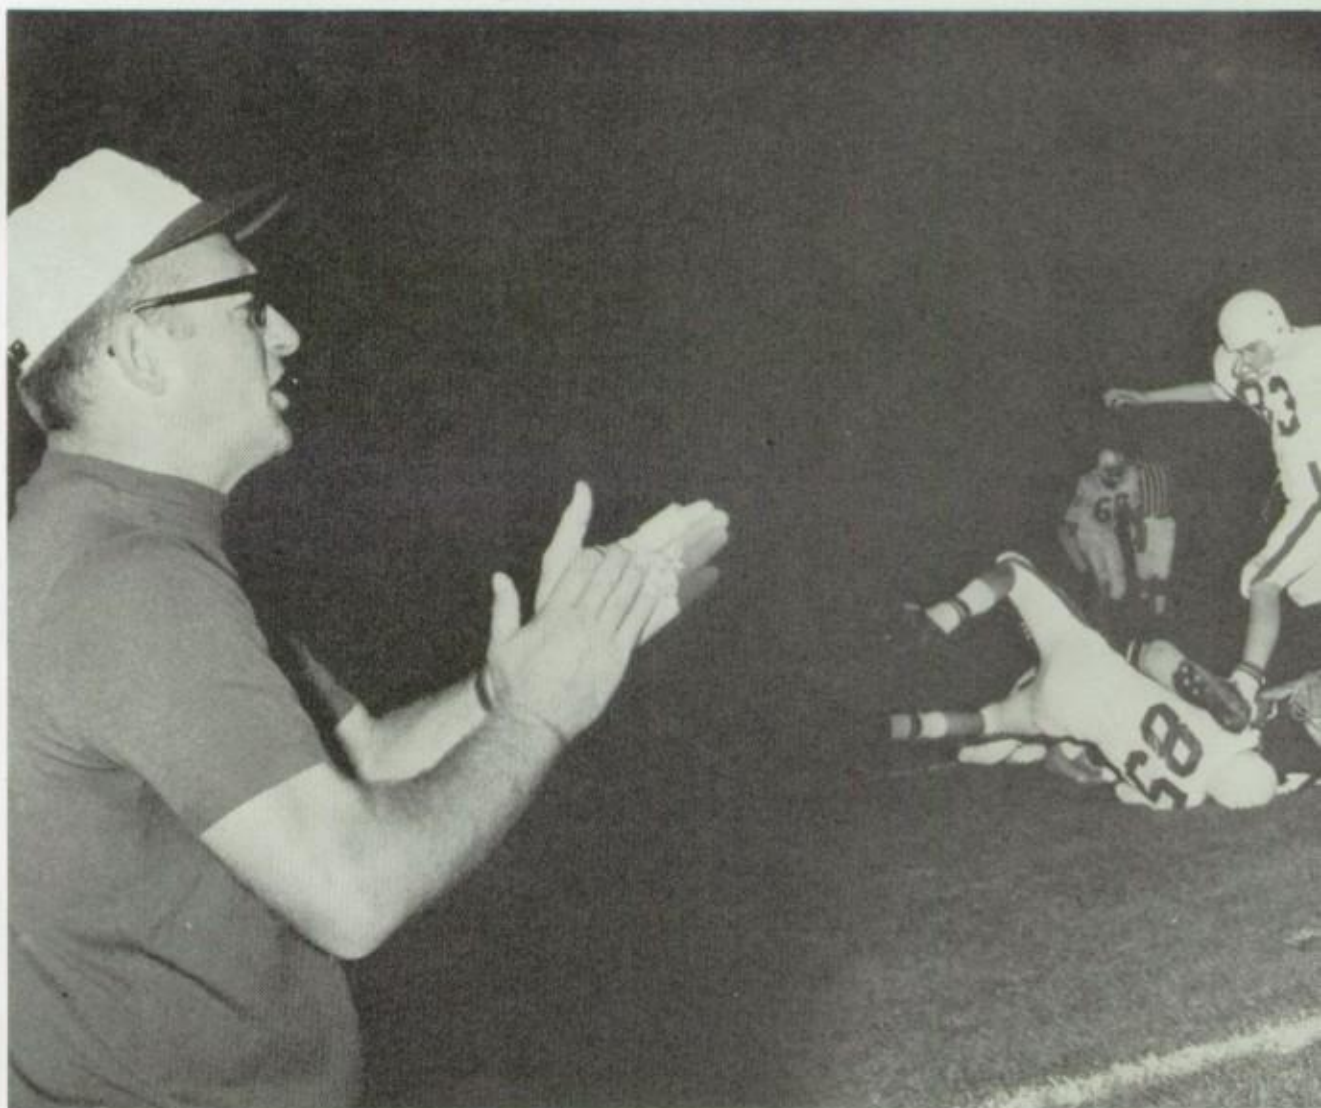

Challenging voices rang through the halls on Thursday morning of the Powderpuff game. Setting off the spirit the Senior Graduates defeated the Junior Superbroads 22-14.

Colorful floats, cars, and bicycles paraded down the main drag and up to the high school on Friday night prior to the game.

As the floats, princesses, and Queen candidates circled around the track during half-time, the anxious crowd and participants awaited for the announcements of the winning float and queen. Last year's Homecoming Queen, Patty Lawyer, crowned Bobette McCune as Homecoming Queen of 1972. Chug-it-to-a-Victory was the theme of the first place winners, Hi-Y, with the freshmen float coming in second.

All school play revived; thespian talents displayed

"Up the Down Staircase" was the all school play presented in the Pendleton Middle School auditorium on March 9 and 10 at 8:00 P. M.

Rehearsals for the play started six weeks before the performance and were held everyday after school. Even some weekends were filled in preparation for the performance.

Patron ads were taken during school hours in the main hall for $1. All the money raised was used for lighting, make-up, advertising, and other necessities to put on the play.

Playing the lead roles in the production were Mike Hawkins and Peggy Odgen. Thirty-three students participated in the play, not including lighting crew, advertising committee, wardrobe crew, make-up crew, ticket committee and properties crew.

April 7 at 7:30 P. M., "An Evening with the Pendletones" was presented, to the public, again, at the Pendleton Middle School auditorium. It was a three part musical: Part One: a tribute to Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstien; Part Two: Kookie Kiddies, Kapers and Krescendoes; and, Part Three: The Pendletones. Mr. Sam McKean, choral director was joined by Mrs. Ellis Giering, pianist, and Joan Zagorski, accompanist. Jeff Greene was the Master of Ceremonies with guest solo appearances by Susan Williams, bGlen Howard, Suzie Whitely Martin and Terry Carroll.

FAR RIGHT: Reigning as Christmas Dance Queen and Prom Queen, Sue Orewiler is also in NHS and Top Ten Percent of her class. She has also served on Steering Committee for four years.

RIGHT: FHA Sweetheart Robin Hodson is kept busy during the school year with Pep Club and SSS. She also served as cheerleader in her freshman year and was in the all-school play in her senior year.

Queens highlight festivities; three seniors reign

Almost every girl at some time or another dreams of holding a queen title. The hopes of Sue Orewiler, Bobette McCune and Robin Hodson came true during the school year. During the annual Homecoming festivities Bobette McCune was announced Queen for 1973. The Christmas dance was highlighted by the crowning of Sue Orewiler as its Queen. Sue also received the title of Prom Queen on May 21 at Lafayette Square. Robin Hodson was chosen by FFA members to serve as their Sweetheart. Her year long duties included attending special meetings, banquets, and representing the chapter at the State Sweetheart contest where she placed highly.

During the evening of yearbook distribution, the result of an election held in May, Bobette McCune again received the royal title as she was the 1973 SCIMITAR Queen.

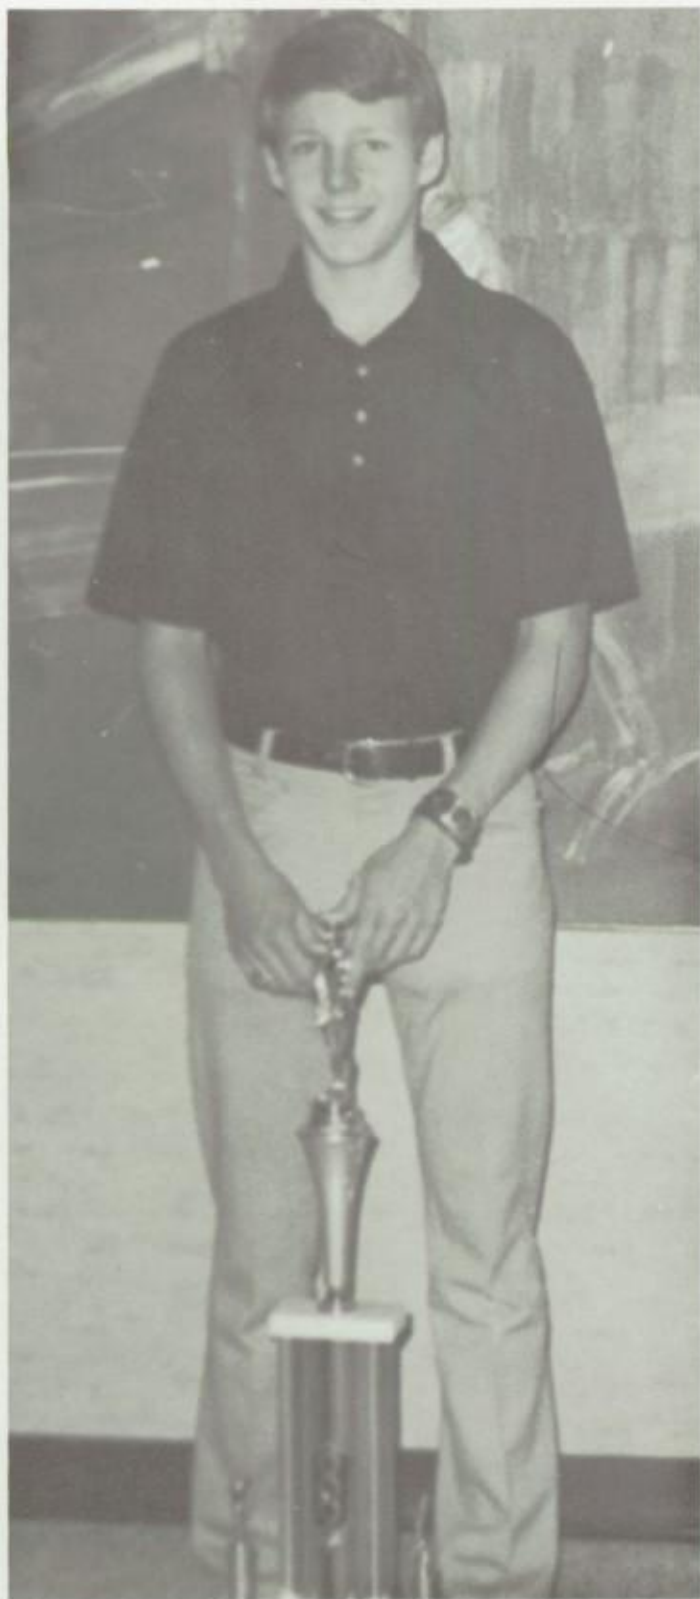

Special awards for exceptional PHHS people

Mr. Frank Lukens has been a member of the maintenance department for 14 years. He has been more, however, than just a janitor. He has held a special place in the hearts of students, faculty members and administration for his service and personal devotion to the South Madison school system. An avid sports fan, Mr. Lukens was presented with a lifetime pass to all PHHS sporting events. Upon receiving a radio from the Athletic Council at the Senior awards convocation, he was met by a standing ovation from the crowd.

Danny Colley was cited for his skill in karate. Having won trophies for his performances in the state, he has traveled across the country, winning often. A sophomore at PHHS, Danny has attained a green belt in karate and will be seeking the black belt soon.

The "Red Haven" award is presented each year to the outstanding athlete in Madison county as judged by the sportswriters of the Anderson newspapers. The 1973 winner of this prestigious award was Greg Crosley of PHHS. Competing on the basis of success in academics, athletics and personal character, Greg had excellent credits. He received a trophy which he may keep and his name was inscribed on the "Haven" trophy.

Mother Goose and Nursery

Rhymes aid Arabians to win

Homecoming, Sectional, WRC are all important events in the history of PHHS. School spirit is necessary for athletes to do well. Many skits and pep sessions were presented throughout the school year boosting the Arabian spirit. Each class would participate in performing skits. Crazy green and white day, boot-it-to-em day, daisy-day, and mourning day were just a few events that took place. Mother Goose did her part in aiding the Arabians as class competition arose in a special pep session for the Sectional. Although the athletes didn't have a successful year in football or basketball, the Arabians never lost their spirit and backed them at all events.

Convos break school routine; add variety

Many people thought convos were only for special occasions, but at least not at PHHS. The school principal Mr. Ernest Miller believed convos were a necessity and scheduled them regularly throughout the school year. Not only students but the faculty had time for relaxation during school hours, breaking away from the dull routine of study, study, study. Groups varying from the Hossier Belles to Light Incorporated came to PHHS to celebrate the holiday's festivities or to talk on drugs and other world problems. Most students really relaxed during the convos and let go of whatever tensions they held within them.

"Color my world" sets mood for 1973 prom

"Color my World" was the theme of the 1973 prom held at Lafayette Square in Indianapolis on May 12. Some couples danced to the vibrations on the "Bittersweet Staff" while others relaxed or ate snacks provided by the junior class. Door prizes were also given throughout the night. As the band played "Color my World" the king and prince candidates escorted the queen and princess candidates down the aisle. Mr. Miller crowned Sue Orewiler as Prom Queen and Mike Bare as Prom King while Kim Higbee reigned as Princess and Brad Henderson as Prince.

Couples stayed from 10 to 1 and then went back to PHHS for post prom activities. "Little Big Man" was shown in the pit and the gym was also open for basketball or volleyball. Breakfast was then served in the cafeteria.

Seniors achieve goals; finalize future plans

The Senior Awards program was held on Friday, May 25, the last day of mandatory attendance for the seniors. Scholarships from several colleges and sororities were awarded to many seniors. Almost every member of the class was recognized for an outstanding accomplishment on his own special field of interest. Organizations honored officers and exemplary members for their work. The program was highlighted by Mr. Custer's presentation of academy award performances.

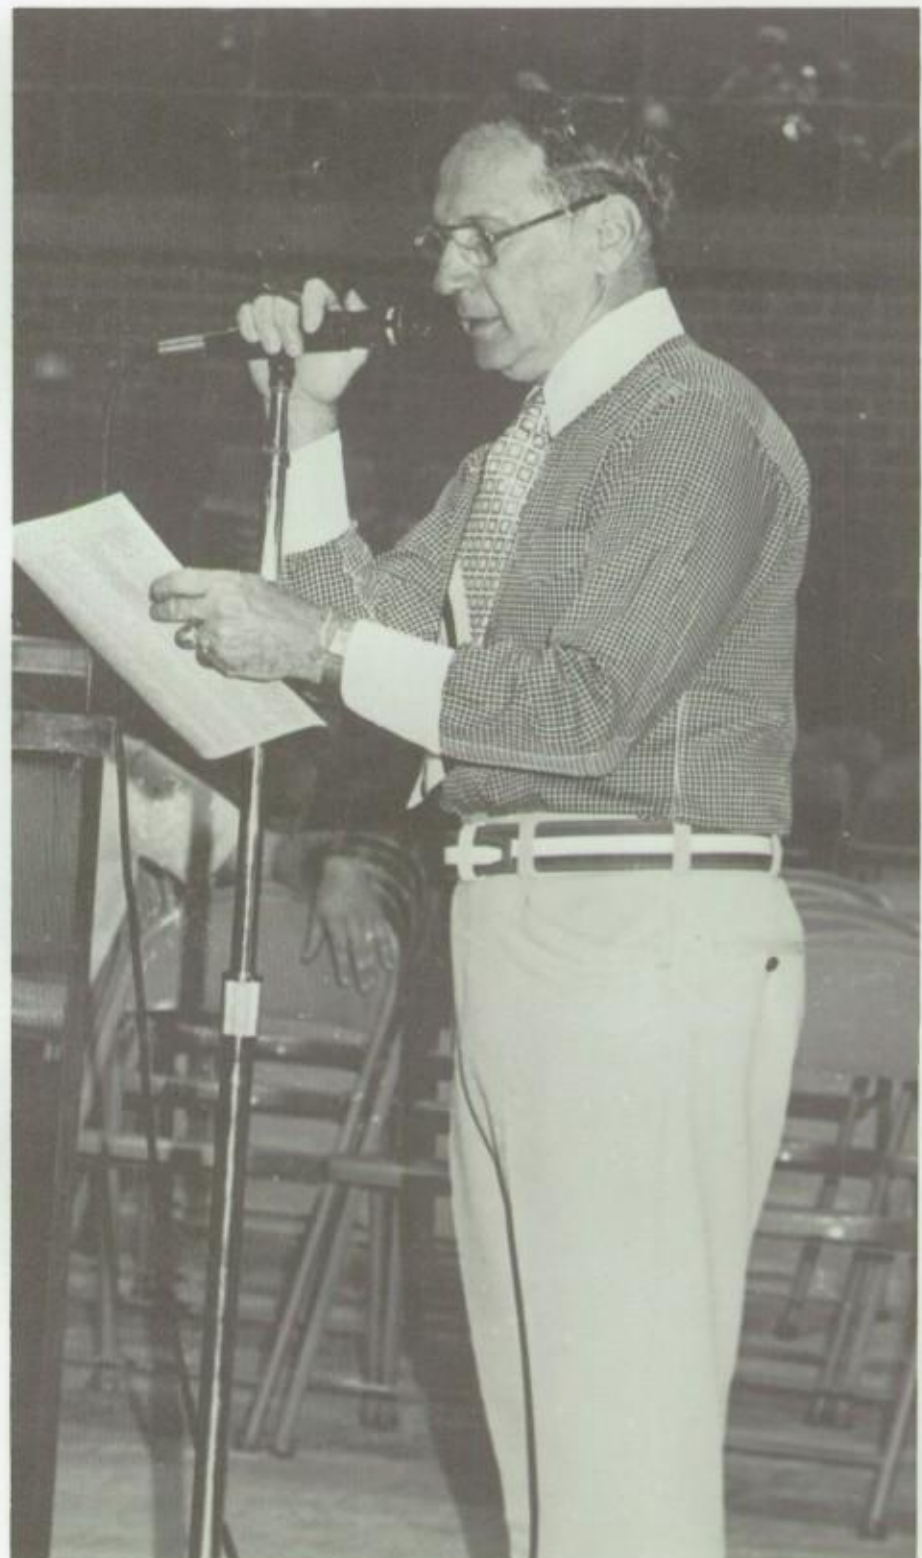

On May 31, friends and relatives gathered as 259 seniors graduated and went out into a new world, full of hopes and expectations. The Commencement exercises were started at 8:00 P.M. and were held in the PHHS gymnasium. The class of 1973 selected as their motto, "We've only just begun". Baccalaureate and Commencement were combined into one ceremony for the first time. Guest Speaker Rev. John Greene spoke on Christ's affect on the younger generation. Speakers for commencement were Mike Bare, President of the graduating class, Vic Mallory, Salutatorian; and Farrell Simmerman, Valedictorian.

Sports

The goal of every serious athlete is to excel in whatever sport he chooses. To select few, the goal is very real and attainable. Others do not quite make it to the top. To be able to look at each game, each practice, and realize that he is one step closer to what he is striving for is what keeps the athlete on his road to success. Constant preparation, physically and mentally, enables the athlete to accept not only winning, but also the agony of the overtime loss, the third strike, or the fourth down. To be able to pick up the pieces and start over again is what separates the athlete from the ordinary person. Each day is a new beginning in Sports.

Netters win Connersville Invitational

All through the summer and most of the fall the tennis team put in a lot of work to come up with a successful season. A record of 7-3 was the season's best as Farrell Simmerman led the varsity squad, Brad Giering was elected team captain and Steve Wills was selected as M.V.P. One of the varsity highlights was winning the Connersville Invitational.

The Reserves led by John Edmundson also bettered their record with 11 wins and 1 loss. The Reserves showed their skills of tennis as they won the Noblesville Invitational.

With four lettermen leaving the team, Mr. Noggle predicted, "The team is still well balanced with four back-up men to replace them. Lots of work over the summer on strengths and weaknesses will determine the difference of a winning or losing season".

Harriers WRC champs again; Frosh romp to unbeaten season

This year's varsity cross-country team proved true to traditional Arabian form as they captured their second straight W.R.C. championship for Pendleton Heights. Senior Greg Crosley led the harriers to a 13-3 record with help from fellow seniors Greg Ritz and Steve Schug. Freshmen Mike Schenck and Jeff Eubank also proved valuable to the squad throughout the season, as the Arabians placed 3rd in the sectional and 11th in the regional.

led a strong freshman squad to an undefeated season of 9-0. The reserves, being comprised mostly of freshmen, compiled a season record of 11-5.

Greg Crosley was selected by his teammates as Most Valuable Runner, and was also voted Captain.

Four-year lettermen Crosley and Schug, along with three-year letterman Ritz, will be missed by the team in 1973, but with four returning lettermen and a strong group of freshmen, the future looks very bright.

'Torrence considers Delta most memorable of the season

Neither rain nor freezing temperatures could keep the loyal Arabian fans from crowding into the bleachers to watch the games both home and away. The fans shoved, pushed, and jammed their way in to make sure they saw every bit of the action. Crowd enthusiasm appeared to be one of the greatest spirit boosters for the team at P.H.H.S.

The Homecoming game was an ordeal in the mud. The Arabians were competitive but, in the end, lost to Shenendoah by one point. It has been said that the most memorable game of the season and of some of the player's high school football careers was the last game against Delta. The four inches of rainfall required all of the skill from the team members. Each player had to stay alert and hold his own. In the last quarter Mike Brown kicked a field goal which led the Arabians to a 3-0 victory.

Each year players from local schools have been named to the All-County team by the Anderson papers. For his outstanding performance throughout the season, linebacker Jeff Oster was selected to this honorary position.

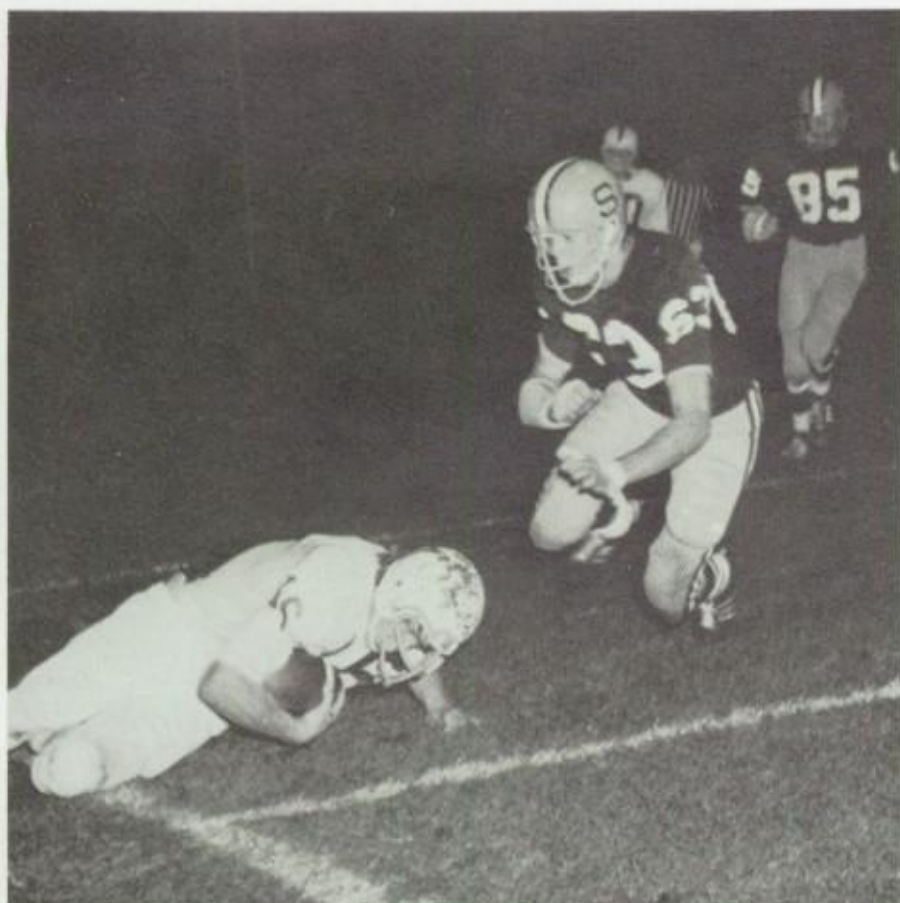

Though the team only won two of eight games, the games won were well deserved. The players put out all they had to gain these wins. As a whole the team members just couldn't get it together for a winning season.

When asked his opinion of the '72 season, coach Torrence said, "The team as a whole has a lot of talent that wasn't put to work this season. Next year I expect the team to work up to their full expectations".

Reserve, Frosh have successful gridiron season

Freshman and Reserve football teams had successful seasons in 1972 preparing themselves for future varsity action. The coaching staff looked for new prospects to make the returning lettermen strive for an undefeated season next year.

Returning lettermen have high hopes for next season with the loss of only 7 seniors in 72-73.

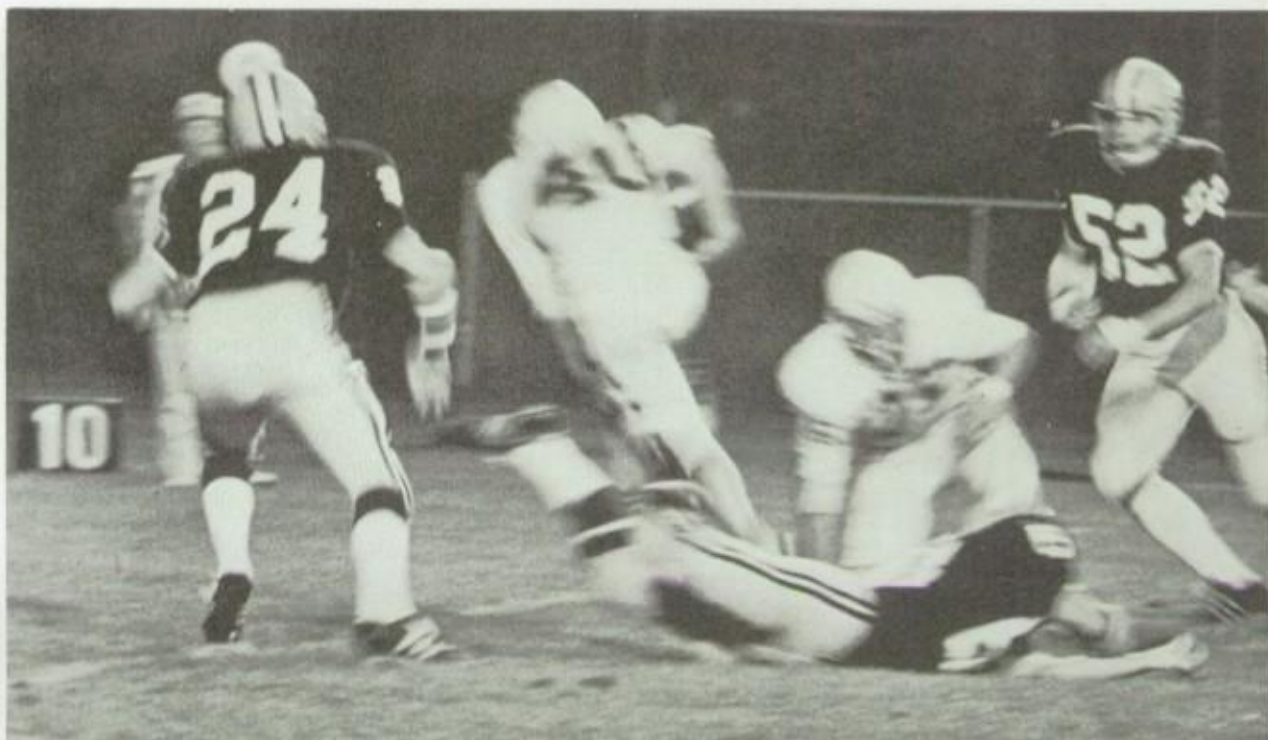

More leadership and spirit is expected from upcoming juniors in 73-74.

Arabians lack points but not hustle, determination

Tough, hard-working, hustling, and heart-breaking were some of the words that described the 1972-73 Varsity Arabians and the events surrounding the season. The cagers suffered through sixteen defeats, nine of which were by less than ten points. But the outstanding aspect of this year's team was their "never-say-die" attitude, even after a discouraging six straight opening losses. The Arabians first victory was an exciting 83-70 win over state power Ft. Wayne Elmhurst. After that, the Arabians were victorious four more times, against Frankton, Delta, and twice over Lapel. Near the end of the season the cagers suffered many close, demoralizing losses to some very strong ballclubs. Muncie Sectional Champ Yorktown was driven to a double-overtime by the Arabians before coming out on top, 76-71. Rushville, the eventual Greensburg Sectional victor, clipped the Arabians by a single point, 76-75. In the Sectional, PH drew Alexandria, and, in a typically close game the Arabs were defeated by a score of 59-55.

The Arabian's leading scorer and MVP for the second straight year was Greg Ritz. Ritz's average of just over 20 points per game made him the fourth leading scorer in Madison County and he was twice selected by the Anderson Herald as "Area Player of the Week".

The team captain for 72-73 was Mike Shirley. The second best scorer on the squad with an average of 14.4, Shirley was also the team's leading rebounder.

On the Reserve level, the B-teamers compiled a season record of 9 wins and 10 losses while showing good promise concerning future Varsity action. Mike Laird was the leading scorer with an average of 15.7, and was also the top rebounder. Second in scoring was Larry McAllister with an average of 10.8, and next was Kevin McCrocklin with a 6.1 mark.

Dennis Vanness and Doug Chandler led the Freshman A team through the year with mid-season help from Steve Baker and Bruce Heffernan. After losing their first five games, the A team finished strong for an 8-10 record. The B team finished 6-10 with Joe Kunkle and Randy Bodenhorn leading the way.

Grapplers still first in WRC; Scott Clark voted MVP

Championship in wrestling has become customary for the PHHS mat men and the 1972-73 season was no exception.

The PHHS wrestlers continued their undefeated record in White River Conference competition for the 4th straight year. The team proved its depth when all 13 members placed in the top four positions.

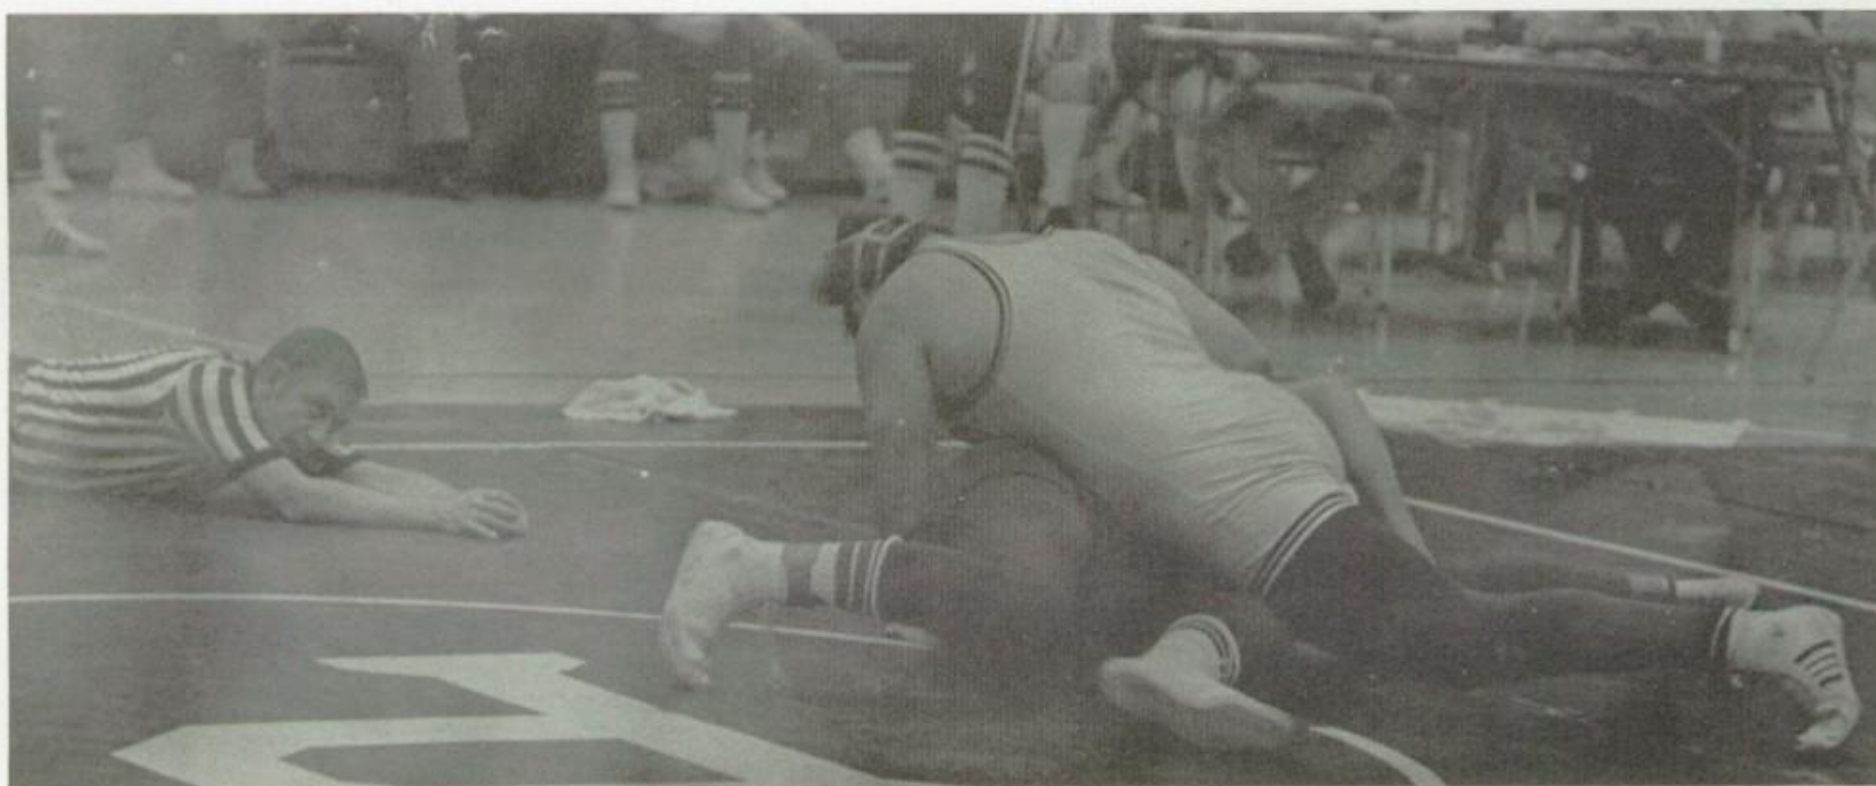

Sectional action for the mat men proved exciting when Robin Abel's match went into overtime and placed the team within one point of second place. In the end, PHHS was 2½ points away from winning, but their 3rd place finish qualified them for regional competition where Scott Clark placed 3rd and Regi Holt placed 4th.

Continuing their display of power, the PHHS men won the Madison County Tourney. First place positions in their individual weight classes were won by Ray Fish, Jeff Purdue, John Stewart, and Rick Gustin.

At the end of the season, senior Scott

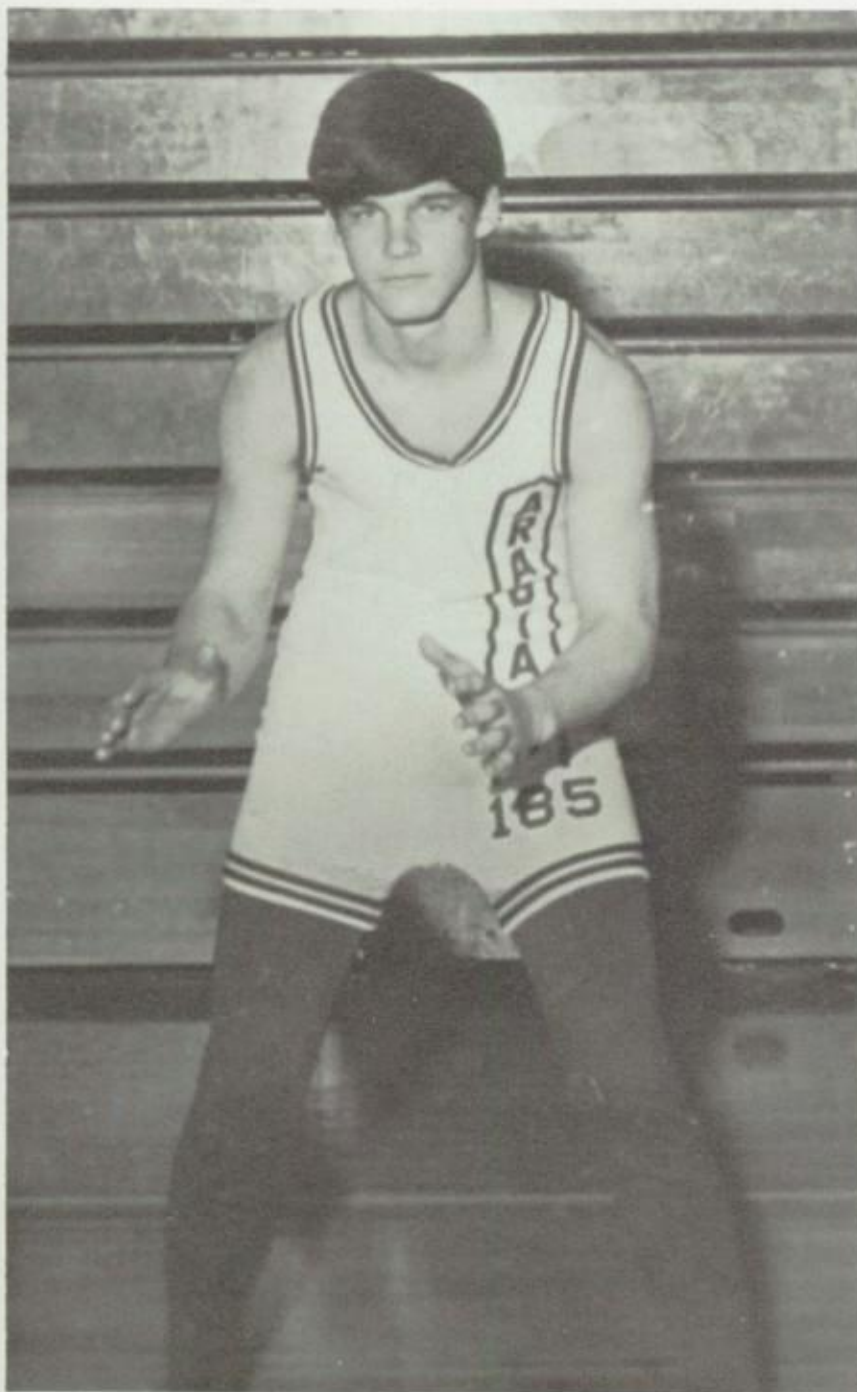

Clark spoke of wrestling saying, "I wish I had it to do over again because I know I won't ever have another chance." For his consistent skill and devotion to the sport Scott was named Most Valuable Wrestler by his teammates. Chosen as co-captains of the team were Ron Barnhart and Jim Goodwin. Records for the year included: quickest pin, 27 seconds, set by freshman Mike Eshelman, allowing coaches to speculate that future PHHS wrestling will be equally successful.

Bill Nelson leads tankmen this season

Two seniors participated on the swim team this year. Co-captain Greg Crosley was successful in the 400-yard free style event and Annie Craig was able to letter by swimming the butterfly and breaststroke events. Co-captain Bill Nelson, a junior, earned the most valuable swimmer award by scoring the most points during the season. Juniors Pete Clark and Steve Crouse added many points in the medley relay along with sophomore Andy Ryan. Sophomore Bart Hoover was this season's best diver. Rounding out the 1972-73 lettermen was freshman Doug Warrum who competed in freestyle events. The PHHS tankers were able to post a respectable 8-5 dual meet season. In the sectional meet, the Arabians were able to place 7th out of 13 teams competing.

The PHHS trackmen set new records this season with Greg Ritz in the 880, Greg Crosley in the mile, Rex Hubble in the pole vault and the mile relay run by Moore, Schug, Wolfgang and Ritz. A new event added to the field events, the discus throw, had its first record set by Brad McKinney. Pendleton Heights won the WRC for the fourth straight year. The trackmen also placed second in the Greenfield relays and the PHHS Invitational.

Rex Hubble won in the sectional pole vault competition, and going on, won the Regional also. Greg Crosley, winner of the mile, qualified for Regional action where he placed 9th.

Freshmen track, also having a successful season, went unbeaten through their season and won the WRC title.

Second in WRC; next year's out- look good

The 1973 golf season was highlighted by a second place finish in the WRC Meet, along with victories over such notable foes as Muncie South, Tipton, Madison Heights, and Noblesville. Season record was 10-8. Senior Dan Losey was the pacesetter for the linksmen. He was voted MVP by his teammates and shared the honor of being elected team captain with another senior, Jeff Oster. Oster was the number three man on the squad with scoring average of 41.3.

Junior Dick Norris headed up the underclass contingent. He will be expected to provide leadership as well as fine play next year. Jim Blake, number four on the team, can be expected to challenge Norris for MVP next spring. Jeff Purdue, number five, is expected to fall in the number three spot if he continues to improve as he did this year.

The batmen of PHHS ready for sectional play

The PHHS batmen led by coaches Robert Smith and Dennis Wallace finished with a season record of 8-6-1. A tough first three games were played and then the team put it together to go with a seven game winning streak. During that time Doug Swackhamer pitched a no-hitter against Highland, a win over Alexandria with a home run by Robin Abel in the last inning, and a twelve hit attack against Greenfield that resulted in a five inning 11-1 win. Robin Abel was honored with the highest average of the season, .373. Further action went on in the summer.

Academics

A school is composed of many small worlds. The gymnasium, the cafeteria, and the classroom. All are a part of the student world. But imagine! The academic world of a high school is not restricted to a square room with four walls and countless rows of desks. The learning process is for the taking. Wake up and look around. Each day is a new beginning in the world of academics.

Stress from colleges for math background results in larger classes

A program suited for math students of varying abilities was provided in 1972-73. The most noticeable difference was in class enrollment. Classes of advanced study were close to capacity levels. Also, a growing number of girls were participating in a previously male dominated area.

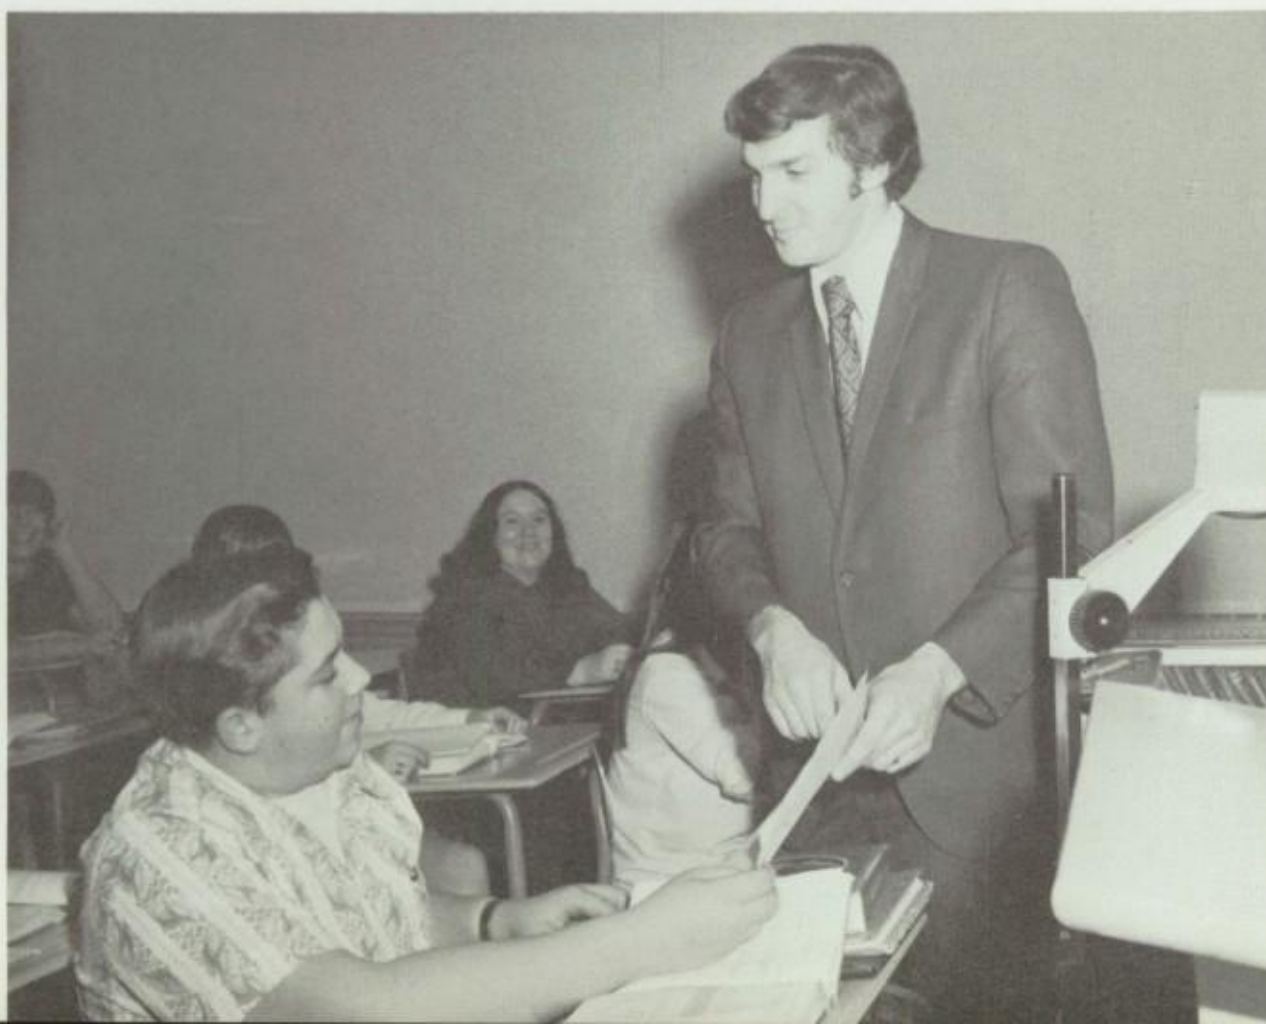

Freshmen took classes of Consumer Math and Algebra I while upperclassmen were busy with Algebra II and Plane Geometry. These two were prerequisites for Trigonometry and Analytic Geometry which were, in turn, required to prepare the student for College Math.

Because of the record numbers of students enrolled in advanced classes, teachers concluded that students were feeling a need for a deep mathematics background. Students were informed that in order to be adequately prepared for college they would need at least one year of advanced math while students of past years did not face this problem.

Field trip, night school featured in science program

The PHHS science department continued to provide its variety of courses on both the introductory and advanced levels and extended its offerings to night school students.

Biology, chemistry, physical science, and physics were made available so that students could develop depth in their science study.

The pit was the meeting place three times a week for Biology I students with regular discussion meetings and lab time continued throughout the week. In mid-year Mr. Roger Ashburn, a recent graduate of BSU, joined the team of biology teachers, replacing Mrs. Carrico.

Advanced biology students studied biotic and abiotic factors in a community while on a field trip to the Blachley Nature Study. Chemistry II was offered only as a night class with 3 hour meetings once a week.

Students in all science classes spent a large amount of time in lab work, in order to gain a meaningful appreciation of scientific methods. They used equipment ranging from standard microscopes, T.V. tapes, and dissection equipment to a highly sophisticated analytic balance which could weigh substances as light as human hair and chemicals which could easily determine the concentration of substances.

Political figures add relevance to election year

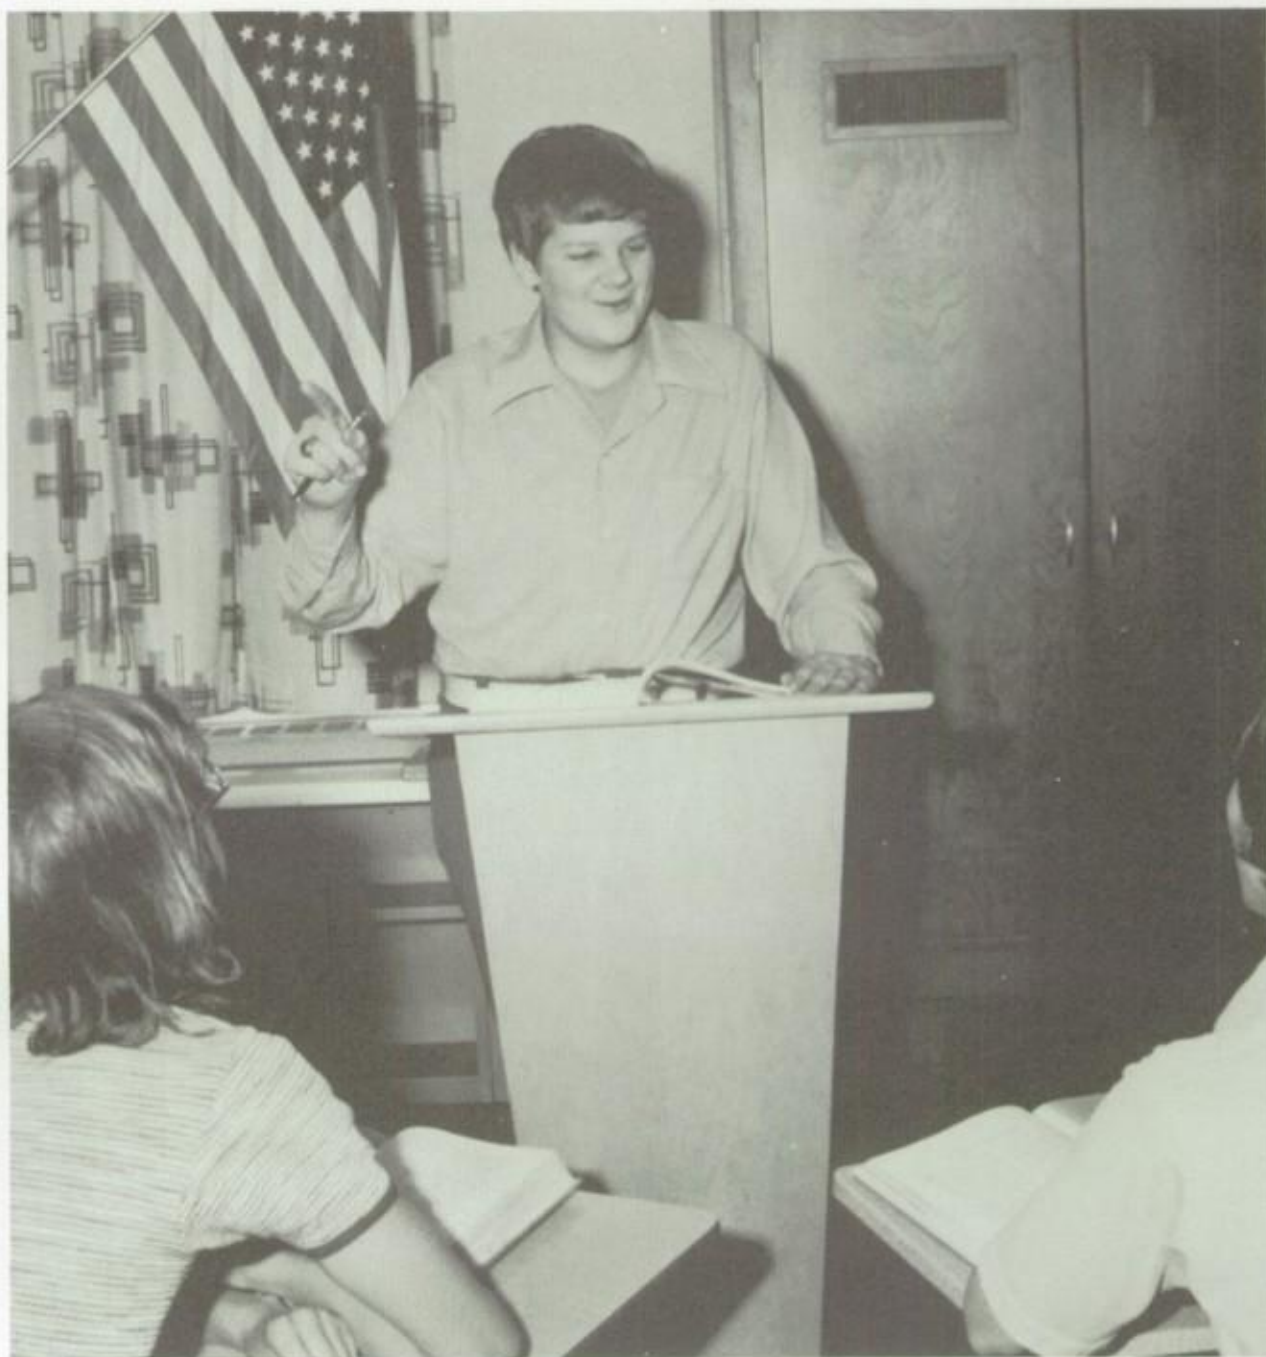

"What are your feelings on the amnesty of American deserters?" This was only one of many questions asked by U.S. History students during a discussion period with Congressional opponents David W. Dennis and Phillip Sharp. The representatives also discussed similar and separate views on capital punishment, abortions and the legalization of marijuana. Students expressed many of their own feelings about the candidate's views in a question and answer period following the meeting.

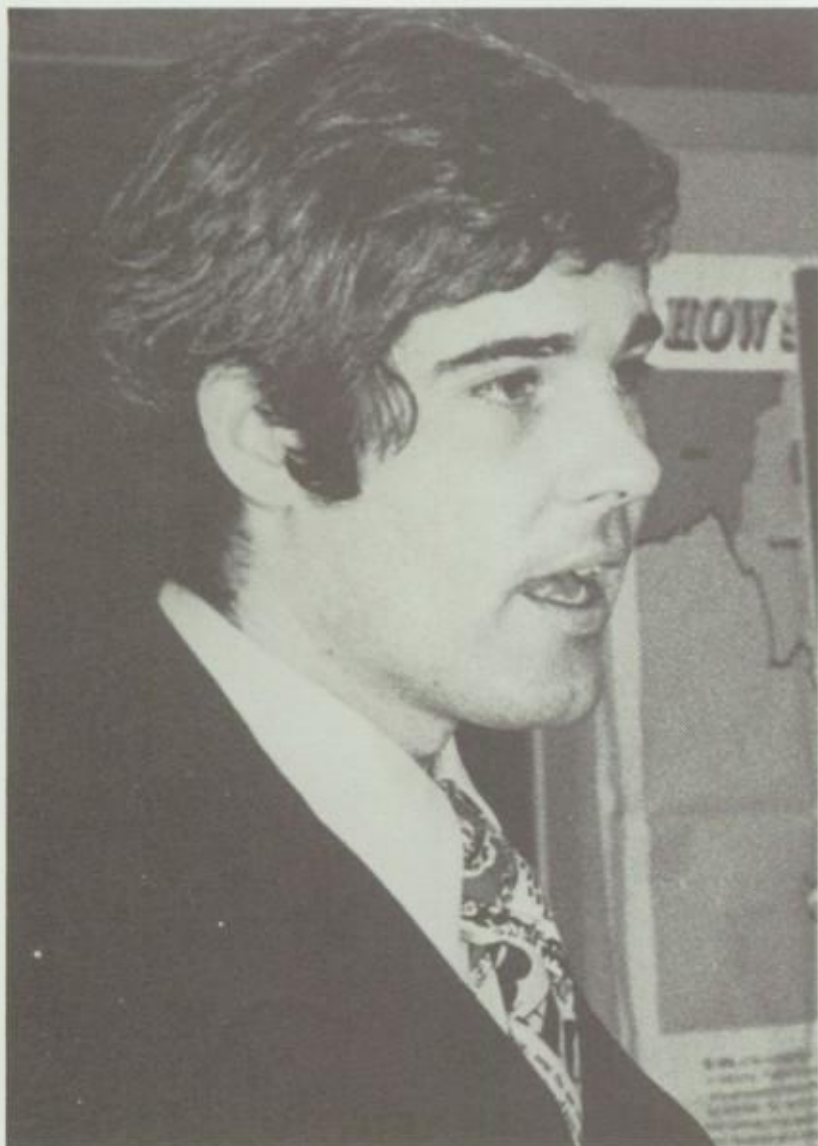

Students in government spent time discussing the upcoming elections and the responsibilities they would meet as new voters. The current system of government, civil rights and the fairness of laws were a basis for discussion by students.

Current Affairs classes spent time covering the recent occurrences in the world along with local activities. Discussions were held by students dealing with the pros and cons of different topics concerning the world.

Criminology, simulation games, all part of Soc., Psych.

Sociology 1973 featured a new teacher, Mr. Wallace, and had an enrollment of approximately 120 seniors and a few accelerated juniors. Group discussions, panel discussions, and simulation games where the students used their own judgment in solving social problems were all a part of the activities employed by Mr. Wallace and his student teacher, Mr. Terry Jenks.

Criminology and Criminal institutions were some of the topics discussed. A project called "Know Thyself" helped the students to realize more about who they really were.

Learning more about human behavior was the task for juniors and seniors taking Psychology.

The emphasis upon personal experience as a basis to "real" understanding of human situations led to skits, group demonstrations, and personal reaction papers.

Field trips to New Castle State Hospital and Muscatatuck State Hospital were taken by the classes to show students our state and local mental health facilities.

Financial problems which become vital in modern living were discussed by the Economics classes. Students worked on practical application of basic principles of budgeting, credit, taxes, insurance, savings, and investments. Participation in the stock market action kept students following its movement.

Phase elective programs boost student interest

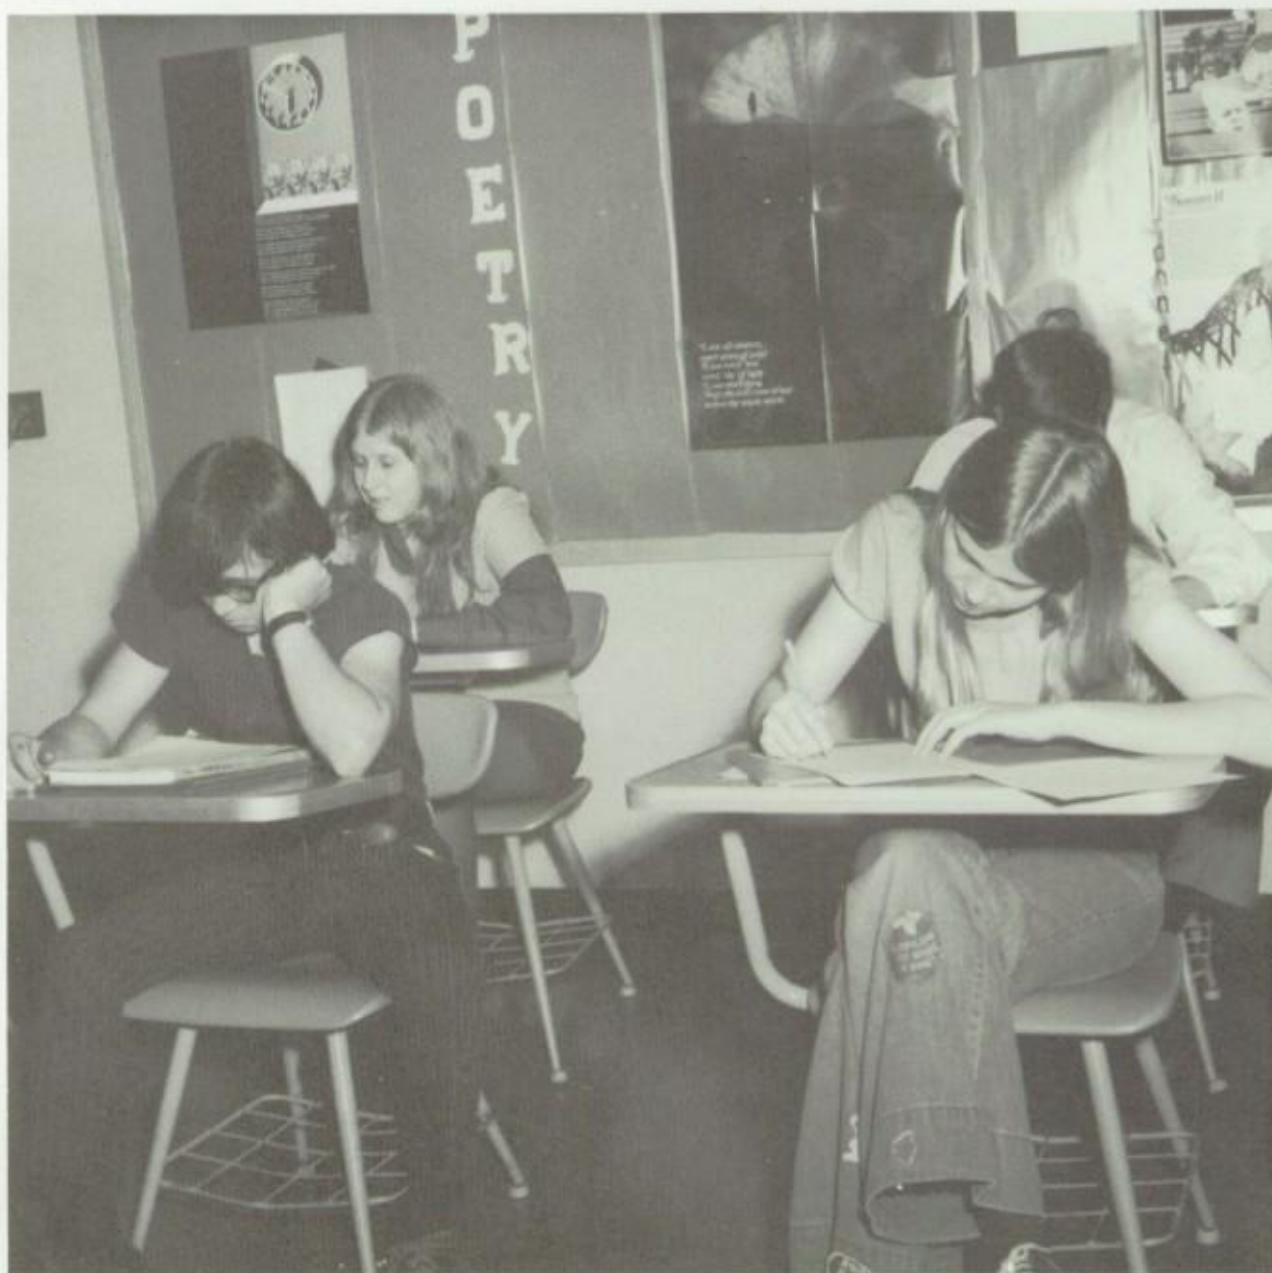

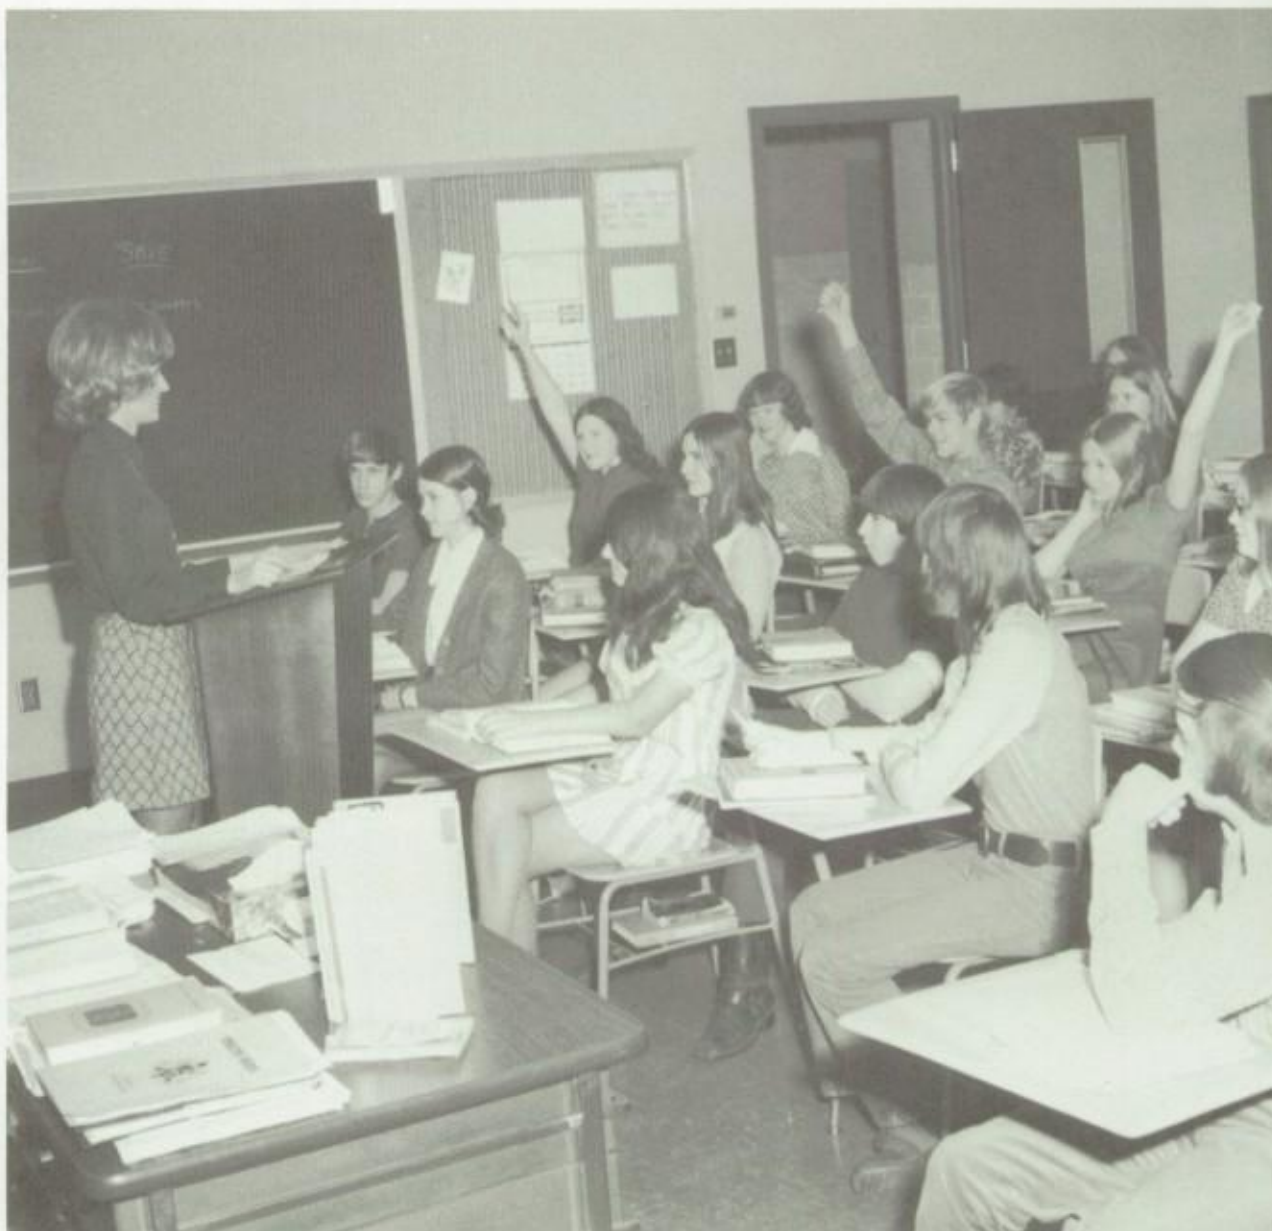

As students acted out Hamlet, made panel book reports and worked madly to complete a term paper on time, the English teachers took on the added responsibility of developing a new phase elective program in continuing effort to provide courses geared to student abilities and interests.

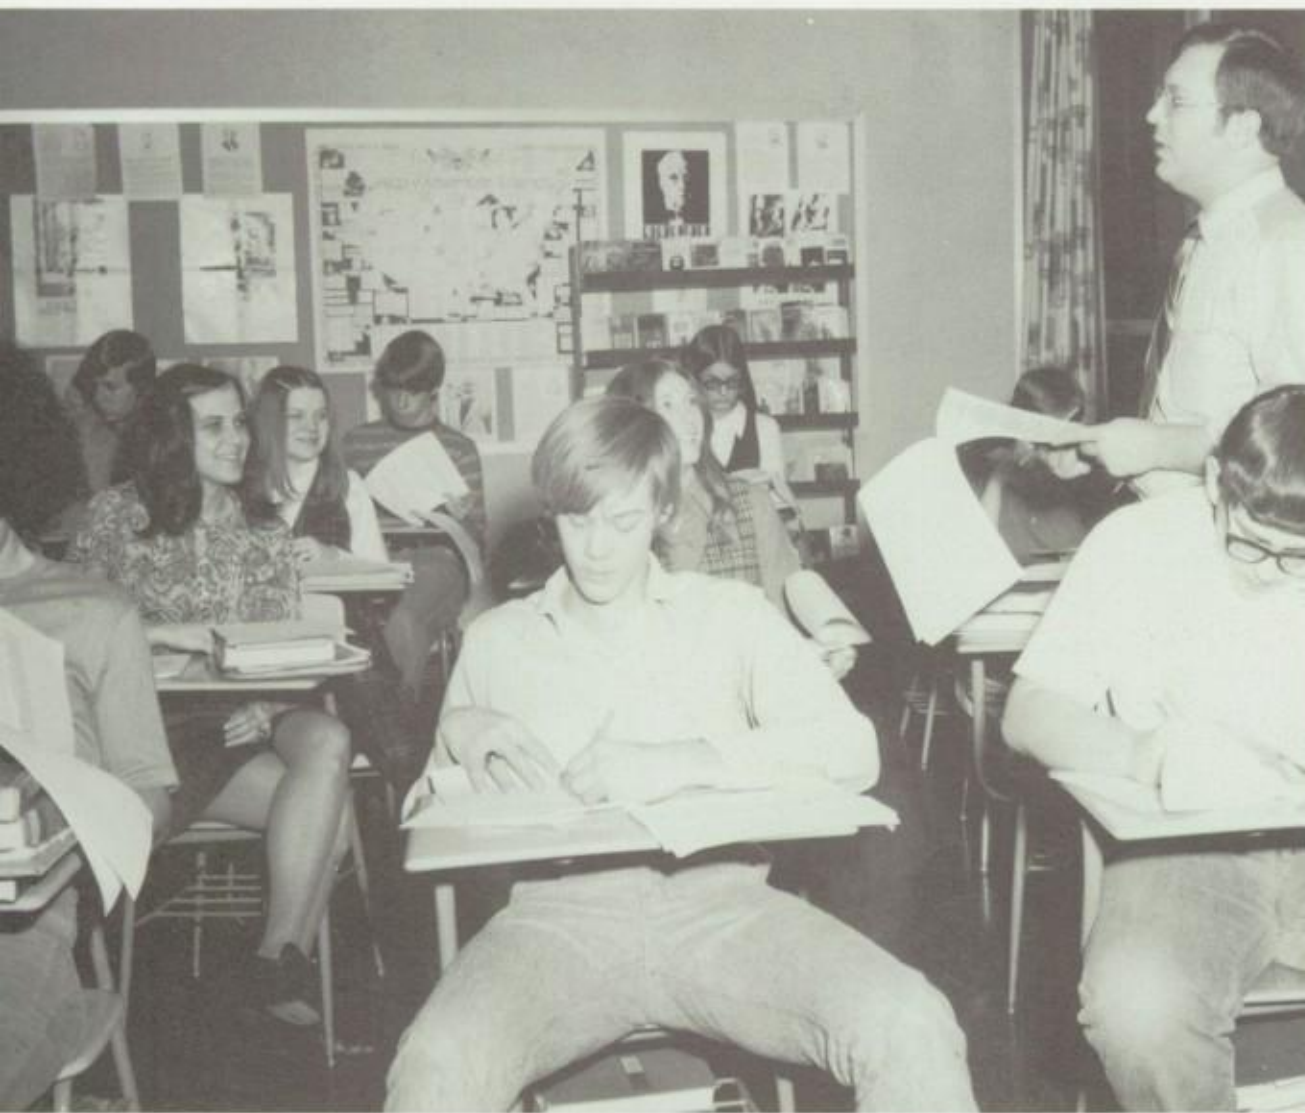

The program created, future juniors and seniors were oriented to the new offerings and given their choice of 40 different English courses. Each student signed up for 6 nine-week studies with subjects ranging from Basic Reading to Shakespeare; Science-fiction to Philosophy and Sports to Politics. Course selections were made by personal interest and need. Each course was related on a scale ranging from 1, indicating a need for basic skills and pleasure reading to 5, which was geared for college bound students who would have more demanding future requirements.

Bible literature was a one-semester class which gave students the opportunity to study the Bible extensively. The class was designed to show students Biblical influence upon our literature, music, and general cultural patterns throughout the world. Literature styles such as biography, historic accounts, romance, sermon oration, narration, and poetry were examined by students in an attempt to understand and more fully appreciate the influence that the Bible has had upon the living styles of people today.

Foreign Language students study native customs

New and old students in foreign language had several unique learning experiences. Students in each class studied the native country of their particular language and their foods and customs. French students worked on learning dialogues, translations and the social customs of France. Practicing at least once a week in the lab on correct accents and listening to French songs helped to further extend their appreciation of the French language.

Spanish students discussed activities that occurred in the Spanish speaking countries and acted out small skits dealing with the lives of these people. Notebooks on Spanish speaking countries and the preparation of Spanish foods were two of the class projects required by Spanish II, III, and IV classes. During the Christmas season, all the students spent time learning popular Christmas carols and customs from some of the Spanish speaking countries.

Ancient Rome and the culture of that civilization were areas that Latin classes studied. Projects depicting Roman dress and models of engineering skills and military equipment were designed to explore the genius of the Roman Empire. The effects of the Roman conquests upon Western civilization were examined. Students discovered the similarities between the Latin and English languages by studying derivatives from the classical languages.

Art students study concepts of creativity

Learning the basic arts and experimenting with ideas in music were new concepts studied by art and music students. Sculpturing, pottery, and macrame were classes in which students could use creativity and imagination in finding new designs and shapes. Students in Basic Arts studied the fundamentals of drawing in extending their knowledge of art skills. The Art Department held its annual art show in which students displayed various art works.

Members of concert choir and mixed chorus traveled to areas of the state to participate in contests and programs. "Fiddler on the Roof" was presented in early November as part of the choir's yearly program.

The Pendletones during the Christmas season held a program of carols for the public and sang at local churches. The Pendletones also visited convalescent homes and sang for several local groups.

Band members sold fruit, candy, and combs to help raise money for new instruments and to help finance its trip to the State Fair. The Flag Corps was a new addition to the band this year. The Corps performed at football and basketball games and at the State Fair.

The Highlights and Arabianettes traveled to state and local contests and received a superior rating in the State contest. Performances at football and basketball games were also made. The Highlights and Arabianettes, as well as the band, received compliments on performances throughout the year.

WEEM reaches out; talk shows, news, UPI machine

Before Fall 1972, the WEEM radio staff reporters could only report an article as fast as it could be found in a newspaper. This problem was eliminated with the addition of a new UPI machine. The machine, chattering away at 60 words per minute, was connected by telephone wires to the United Press International news service. Broadcasters, giving the news for 10 minutes every half hour, were able to inform the listening public of news events almost as fast as they occurred. Stock reports, weather, and national news were reported daily while the remaining 20 minutes were spent listening to music. Easy-listening music was aired during the school hours. For the after school audience, the "Top 40," and acid rock was played for their enjoyment. The "Progressive Rock Show", billed as the "Boogie Review", was developed especially for the student's taste and was aired every Saturday from 11 till 3 a.m.

A new program called "Pendleton Today" was developed for the listening public. Guest speakers were given time to discuss matters of local concern, and the public was invited to call into the station to voice their opinions or to ask questions of the authorities at hand.

Mass media classes viewed a slide series presented by the Anderson Newspaper to help acquaint them with the procedures used in getting a newspaper from the writer through printing to circulation. The editors from the local paper added personal accounts of their experiences.

Business courses prepare students for future careers

Studying for jobs in the business field was the objective of the business labs. Students in Typing I & II learned the basic fundamentals of typing. Practicing on gaining speed and accuracy were two of the objectives of the class.

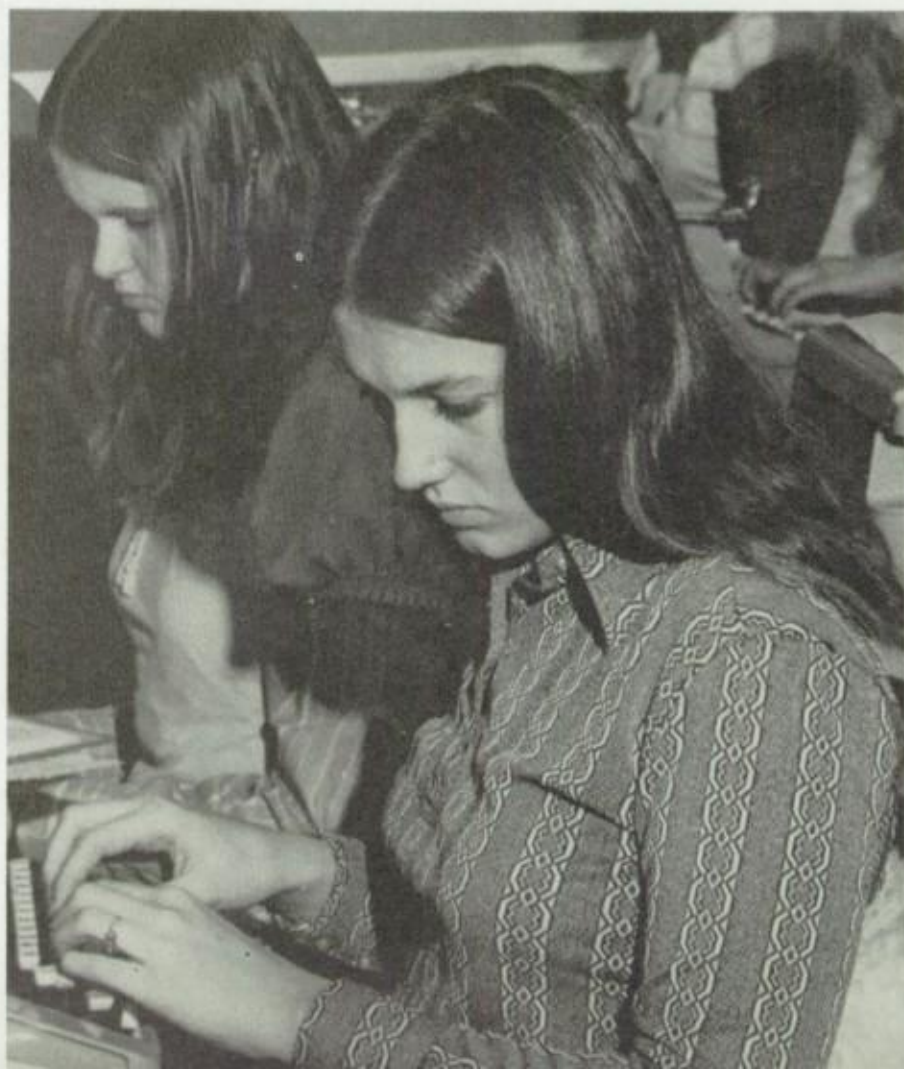

Recorders and dictaphones were used by students in Intensive Business Lab. This class enabled the student to experience some of the different types of work she would be required to handle in the secretarial field.

Bookkeeping, Shorthand, and Business Machines were also three areas of the business programs which students could take. Students in Bookkeeping learned the skills in managing and auditing books. Business Machines helped students learn how to correctly operate the adding machine and calculator. Students in Shorthand learned the Gregg method for correctly taking dictation in a secretarial job.

Married life, day school; new areas for study

Married life, housing, and the responsibilities of a young adult were a few of the areas studied in Family Living. Classroom skits on family life, reports, and group discussions were requirements students had to meet. Field trips on home buying and on the scene experience were techniques used to give students a better idea of economic values.

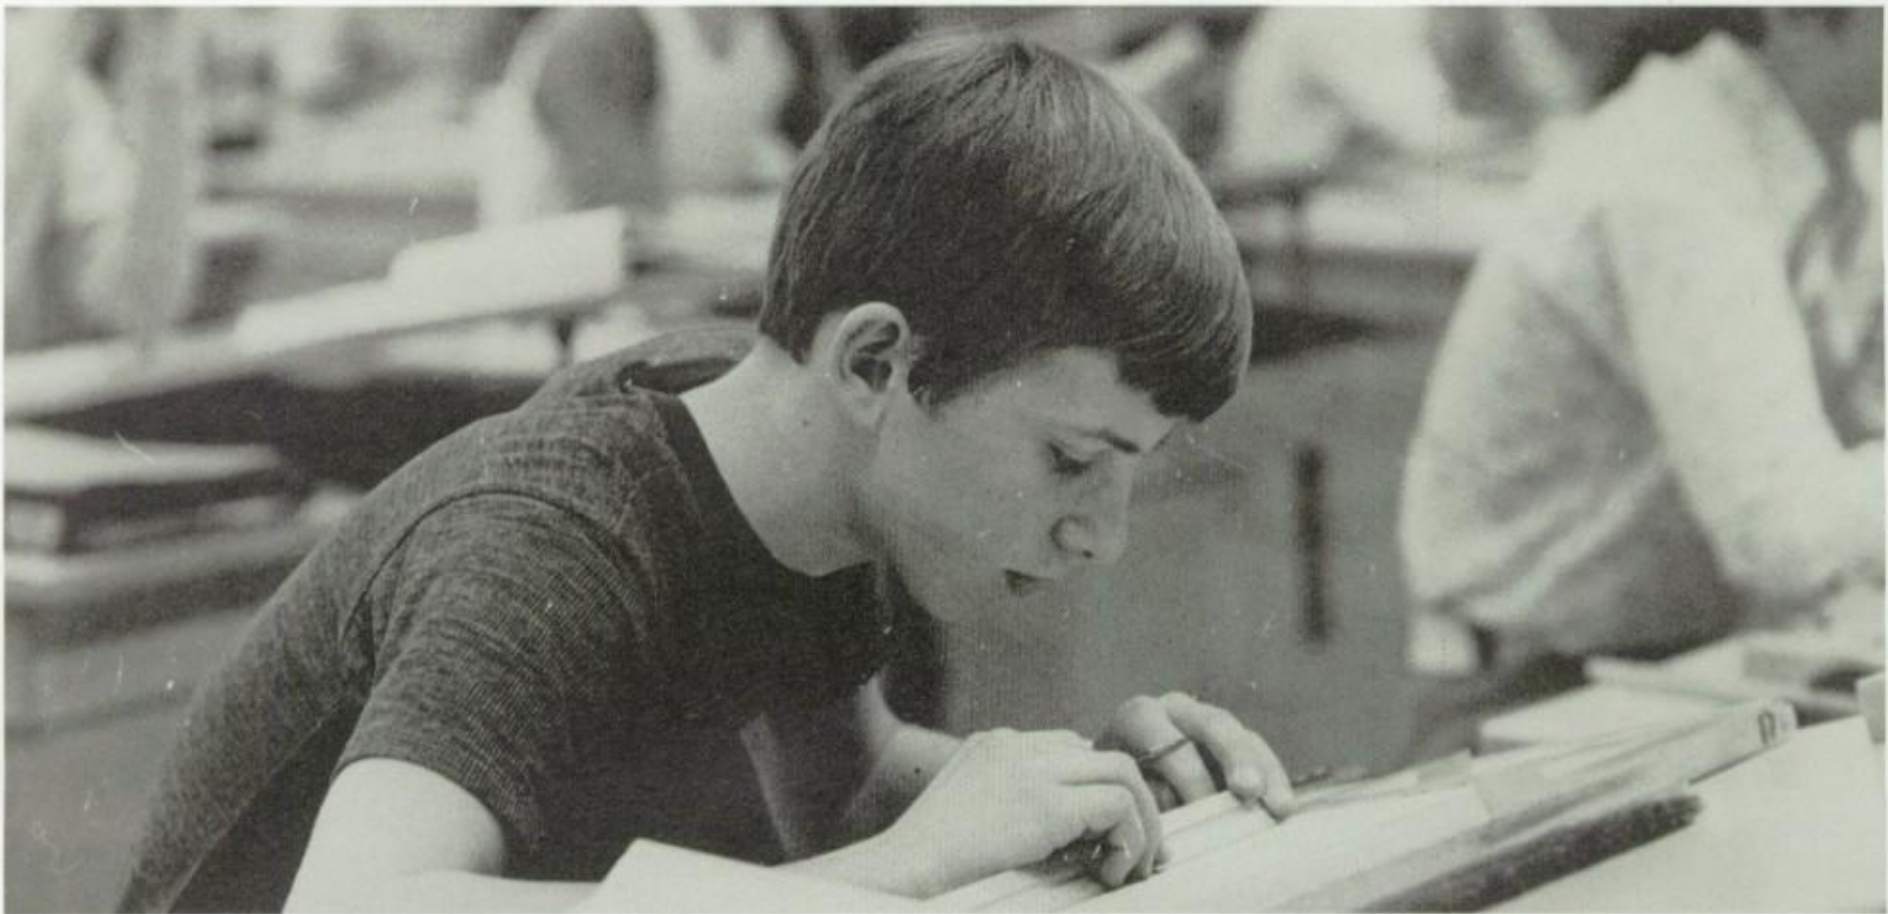

Advanced Sewing and Advanced Foods were used by students in Home Ec. to further their skills in the home management area. Preservation, foreign foods, and meal management were discussed in Advanced Foods. Labs were held by the students to practice their skills in cooking and to experiment with different foods.

Color coordination and fabric content was the first area studied in Home Ec. I. Labs in cooking and serving meals were held to give students more practice in the homemaking field. Home nursing students were required to show some of the emergency basics in case of an accident or disaster. Studies of child care and children's habits were made by Home Ec. II and III. A day school was held by Home Ec. III students to give them more experience in handling children. The students were required to observe the children and make a report on the behavior of each child.

Vocational requirements focus on practical skills, supervised labs

Dairy judging, electricity, and engine repair were areas studied in the vocational field. Students in Agriculture participated in many state and local contests. They entered in divisions of poultry, crop, livestock, dairy and entomology and received first place in the district. Studies were also made of new methods of soil conservation and raising farm crops.

Rebuilding a car was one of the projects undertaken by the auto-mechanics students. They were required to tear down and reassemble a small engine properly. Special attention was given to compression and timing.

Electricity and electronics students were involved in many lab experiences throughout the school year. Some students studied the basics of electricity, including electron, static electricity, and house wiring. In another class the students were involved in the building of a radio and the study of a five tube radio. The various degrees of volts used in installing electrical outputs were other areas studied by the class. Students were required to be able to sufficiently handle several separate degrees of electronical output.

The requirements for these students were made to seem less tiresome with their knowledge that the skills gained in these courses would be put to use in years to come. These classes were practical to a student who intended to go into a vocational career, also for general household maintenance.

Physical fitness, game strategy, officiating; integral parts of P. E.

The physical education department again offered training in recreational sports including volleyball, basketball and swimming. Freshmen were found most often in these introductory classes, using facilities in the gym, pool, and outdoor courts.

Those students who desired additional practice and training enrolled in advanced P. E. classes. These classes were co-educational and instruction included classroom discussions on game rules and strategy. Work and practice were done to perfect special skills and increase game proficiency.

Life saving skills including entry, life saving holds, swimming strokes, and artificial respiration, were practiced in advanced swimming where students could earn a life saving license. Patches and certificates were won by individuals who successfully completed skill requirements and submitted a paper on water safety. Students receiving this license were qualified to work as life guards in public swim areas. The program at PHHS was rated as one of the best in this area because requirements were far above the minimum.

A class on Individual and Team Sports was offered to juniors and seniors who had an interest in gaining a major or minor in the physical education area. Extensive instruction and participation in popular sports as well as a class presentation were required.

1972-73 was an innovative year for the Health department. Plans were made to synchronize all levels of health from grade 6 to high school. Such areas as Environment, Civil Defense, First Aid and Safety, and Drug Education were to be included in the new program. The project was undertaken to eliminate the needless repetition found in so many Health programs.

Organizations

How can organizations like Quill and Scroll, Future Homemakers of America and Spanish Club fit into a high school system that has become so concerned "relevance" and "meaning"? In a system that is quickly becoming filled with "individuals" only, is there room for the "joiner" any more? A club is based on a purpose, and a constitution, and a sponsor, and most importantly, its membership. Maybe it's a group of thirty, maybe only five. But those five people share the same interests and the same goals as you. You really have a place to belong, with countless "new beginnings."

PHHS watches honor societies induct members

New members of the Pendleton Heights National Honor Society were inducted into the organization during an all school convocation. Background about school life and activities at each inductee was read, pins and membership cards were awarded. Qualifications for membership were based upon NHS standards. Members were juniors or seniors who excelled in leadership, scholarship, service to the school and community and who had outstanding personal character. Recognition was given at graduation for this successful academic and social career.

In order to be inducted into Quill and Scroll, one had to be a junior or senior in the top one third of his class and have worked on one school publication. He must also have been recommended by the sponsor, stating that his efforts were extended toward creating a journalistic spirit in the school. Deserving Hoofprint and Scimitar Staffers were offered membership in the spring.

Lettermen, Hi-Y sponsor money making projects

Throughout the 72-73 school year, the Pendleton Heights Lettermen's Club was quite active. During the Fall, members sold cushions at football games and held a hayride, along with sponsoring the Harlem Satellites Basketball game. Later in the year the Lettermen attended a Pacer basketball game at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Hi-Y was also very active throughout the year. The members bought Hi-Y shirts, and sponsored a food drive for needy children at Thanksgiving. They also won first place in the Homecoming Float Contest. During the basketball season, a Hi-Y cheering block was formed to aid school spirit. In the Spring, Hi-Y sponsored the Easter Convocation and held the popular Slave Sale. 36 members were sold, netting more than $100.

Spirit buttons sold to boost spirit at PHHS

The spirit stick, a symbol of enthusiasm, was won by the Varsity cheerleaders at camp at the University of Tennessee. They also brought home three blue ribbons and one red after a week of learning new yells, new skills, and precision. The cheerleaders sponsored many money making projects which included selling cards, sponsoring a dance, painting dug-outs, and cleaning the athletic buses.

The cheerleaders were aided during the year by the Pep Club. In an effort to boost spirit, the Pep Club sold "spirit" buttons during both football and basketball season. Selling these buttons also served as a money making project. Cider and donuts were sold during some of the football games in order to raise more money.

The wrestling teams were supported by the Mat Maids who were in their second year of organization. Among their duties at the wrestling matches were collection of admission and keeping the team score.

Staff works to present a review of school year; creates larger Scimitar

Using ideas and training they had gained from summer workshop at Ball State Sue Brown and Marie Hart worked to produce a bigger and more colorful Scimitar for 1973. Suggestions and answers to technical problems were supplied by advisor, Miss Webb, Paragon Publishing representative, Larry Glaze, and Ron Plum of Reid's Studios.

Planning to produce a 192 page book, employing special printing techniques and using color in the most currently artistic style, the Scimitar staff was faced with the problem of finances. The first project was to sell ads to merchants of the area. More money was taken in this way than any other single source. Pictures from books of previous years were sold. Underclass pictures were distributed and sold with profits surpassing any other year. Posters and popular slogans were used by staff members during the book sales campaign. The Staff accomplished their goal and succeeded in keeping student costs down to a minimum level.

New was the by-word of the year. Almost every staff member, photographer, and manager were assuming roles they had never worked in before. Working on layouts, writing copy, and putting it all together to create a yearbook demanded a full year's energy and enthusiasm. However high the stack of problems, somehow deadlines were met and in August the staff proudly presented to the awaiting student body, a review of 1973 at Pendleton Heights.

Staff uses new vertical layout; Justowriter asset

A twenty-one member staff made up of students from all four classes continued to keep the student body informed of current happenings and special events at PHHS.

This year for the first time the Hoofprint had a vertical style layout rather than the previous horizontal style used in past years. Instead of a four page 8½ x 11-inch paper, the Hoofprint staff had a two page 11 x 17-inch paper which came out every other Friday.

Mr. King and the Graphic Arts Department printed the Hoofprint and this year students in the Vocational Business Lab typed the paper on a new machine called the Justowriter which prepares copy with an even right margin. This was not only an asset to the paper but it was a good experience for those students who worked on it.

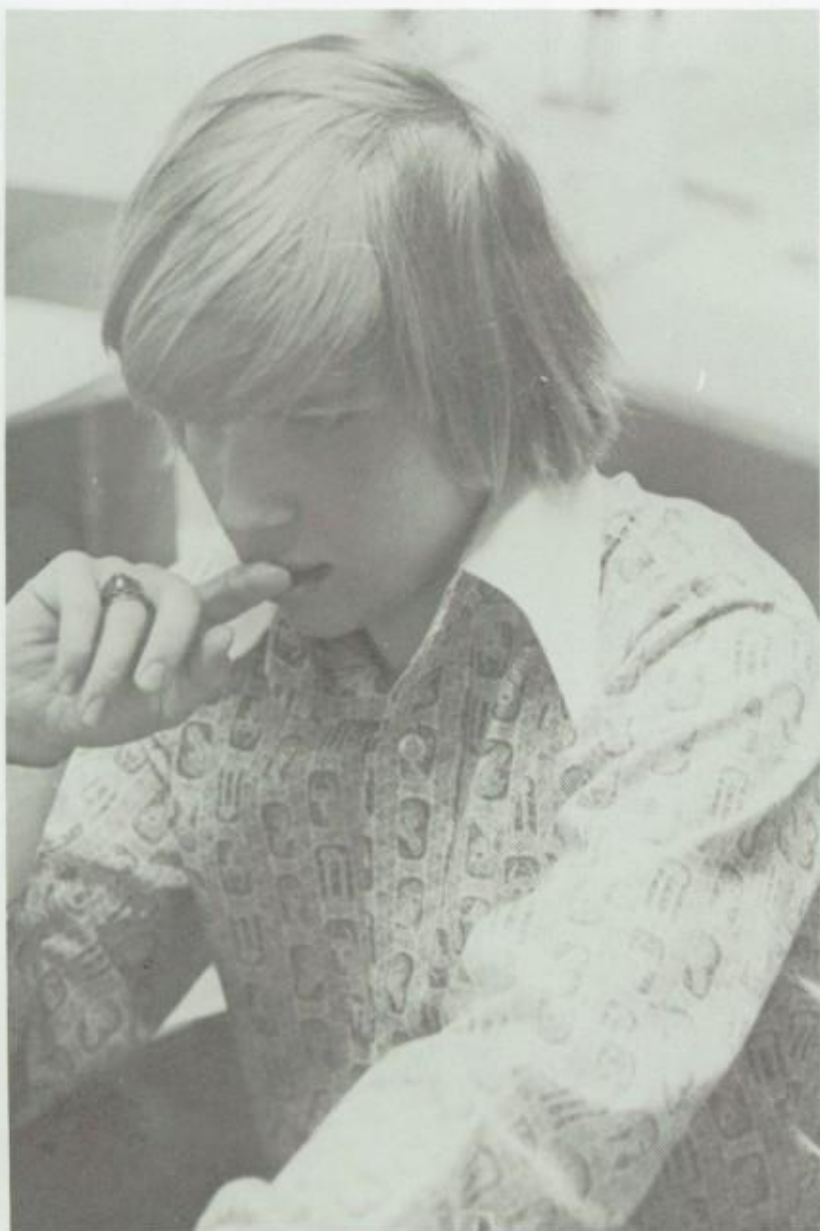

As they had done before, the staff exchanged newspapers with twenty-five schools in order to learn more about journalism and ways of improving the paper.

18 girls work to visit Mexico City and Alcapulco

Raising money for a trip to Mexico City and Alcapulco took many long hours of work for members of the Spanish club. Touring many famous sites in Mexico City and the surrounding countryside was the result of their efforts. This year 18 girls and two sponsors spent spring vacation touring Mexico. Money for the trip was earned through bake sales, a paper drive, a potato sale and the annual Spanish fiesta.

April 6 was the date set for the French club's annual Folies-Bergere. French food and entertainment in the casino, a can-can chorus and the singing of French songs were part of the main activities. A cookie sale and bake money sale helped the French student to earn money to sponsor the events for the year.

A Halloween party and a chariot for the Homecoming parade were two of the activities of the Latin Club. Members of the club celebrated Halloween in a Latin atmosphere. The chariot resembled ones used by the Roman in the early ages and boosted the Arab spirit.

Caduceus tours Medical Center; OEA goes to National contest

Attending the State Convention at Butler University, Caduceus Club members had a chance to learn about various job opportunities in the field of medicine. Workshops were held so that members could attend the classes of their choice.

Many tours were made during the school year. These included a tour to the Van Ness Medical Center and the Anderson Vocation School of Nursing. Observing an animal operation was also one of the activities. The money making project of the year was a carmel apple sale. The money earned from this project went toward a skating party and a dinner at Hagerstown.

Girls interested in the secretarial area of work joined the Office Education Association to become more informed in the business field.

As group projects, OEA sold Christmas gifts and valentines. On October 28 a Halloween party was held at the home of Jean Peters. In December, another meeting at Mrs. Wynant's house was held. Post graduates came and spoke on the aspects of job hunting and the many experiences in the job field.

The Annual Spring Fling was held in the school cafeteria on May 15. A pitch-in-supper was first, followed by the 1972-3 Lab girls giving a demonstration of the type of work they had done throughout the year.

Preparation key to science, chess, debate contests

Competing against other schools was one of the activities of the Chess club. Members practiced on acquiring the skills necessary to be serious players, which may have been prompted by the interest created by Bobby Fisher.

Traveling to other schools for debates was one of the activities of Debate club in 1972-73. Club members met several times a month to work on their debating techniques. Each time they used a specific topic and argued the pros and cons. In November, the PHHS Debate club hosted a Debate tournament for area schools.

Experiencing new techniques in the field of science was one of the goals of the Science club. Members spent time working on projects they hoped to enter into the Science Fair held at Ball State University. Greg Crosley succeeded in receiving a high placing on his project on spectro-photometry.

Arts and crafts plan future trip; Campus life challenged at push ball

Meeting twice monthly, the 22 members of the Arts and Crafts Club made and sold jewelry in order to earn money for a trip to the Art Museum. Christmas cheer was promoted by painting the windows of the Cafeteria with Snoopy and his friends and a snowman in the main hall trophy case. The Art show was held for two days on April 5 and 6.

Attending Scream in the Dark in Indianapolis was one of the main activities of Campus Life. There were several sessions of girl talks added to the many other topics of discussion. Other activities enjoyed by Campus Lifers included Lapel's challenge to a "Push ball" game and also sponsoring a car wash.

Films, projectors, and many other visual aids added greatly to the interest of a topic and made learning not quite so difficult. Service was provided to teachers during the day. Equipment was delivered at the desired time and place. Members of the A-V club took care of running the machines for the instructor.

The WEEM radio club was responsible for coverage of events that were of interest to listeners of this area. New experiences were provided for radio club members as they announced local and national news, worked with professional equipment and met personalities of the news. Broadcasts were made from the studio at Pendleton Heights.

Judging, 4-H roundup, Sadie Hawkins dance; part of FFA, 4-H, FHA

The Pendleton Heights FFA chapter each year enters various leadership events to help each member become a more capable leader and gain valuable leadership experience. Some of the events were the annual Parent & Son Banquet, attending the State Convention at Purdue, and participating in the state awards program.

Judging events which were held were: crops, dairy, land, forestry, and livestock. The highlight of these events was the livestock team going undefeated and participating in the state judging contest.

The past year the Pendleton 4-H Club achieved many honors and awards. One of these was the naming of Reserve Grand Champion steer to Chris Barkdull. Club members also attended 4-H Roundup and Leadership Conference at Purdue University in recognition of their achievements and accomplishments.

The Future Homemakers of America engaged in many activities in 1972-73. The Sadie Hawkins dance was one of the most important money making projects of the year. Many students came to the dance and were married by the Country "Preacher." Another activity of importance was FHA week. One day out of this week was set aside to show the students appreciation for the teachers. Apples were sent to both teachers and student teachers.

GAA Volleyball team wins sectional; active year for intramurals

The Girl's Athletic Association had a very successful overall season. To make a season so successful each girl had to put out and live up to all of her abilities. This along with leadership and dependability was put to use in each of the team sports.

In volleyball the team entered and won the sectional then advanced to the regionals where they were runner-up. There was a lot of team participation and enthusiasm to make this an exciting season.

The basketball team was alert and alive to reach an 8-2 record.

Tennis action was competitive with two teams reaching regional games which Pendleton Heights hosted.

Choirs combine talents to present musicals to community

All of the musical groups at PHHS worked long hours all year in an effort to make outstanding performances.

The Pendletones presented a total of 25 concerts through the year. The group performed voluntarily and were asked for five programs at the Turtle Creek Nursing Home. Among the most memorable performances according to Mr. McKean was held at Marion Veterans Hospital.

The Broadway Hit "Fiddler on the Roof" was presented twice in November by the Concert Choir. Standing ovations for spectacular performances were given both nights. The concert choir highlighted its season by joining with several other schools in Indianapolis for Christmas On The Circle.

The Boy's Choir, Concert Choir, Girl's Choir and the Pendle tones combined talents and energy to participate in several musical productions throughout the year, including a Christmas Choral, Spring Choral, Madison county Choral Festival and a program entitled Musical America. Their annual night out for their own entertainment was dining at the Clambake and attending a movie "Lost Horizon".

Entertainment prime objective of band group, twirlers

During the summer, the band practiced in preparation for the State Fair contest and went to band camp at Ball State University for one week. Placing in the top 25, members looked forward to next year's performance with hopes of placing in the top 16.

Band members attained better playing techniques while preparing for musical contests in separate divisions. Performing both solo and group routines, the majorettes participated in many area contests and also twirled at the state contest in Kokomo. They attended the summer Nationals in Wisconsin to compete against twirling groups from all parts of the United States.

Half-time and pre-game performances were presented at both home basketball and football games by the band and majorettes. After-school practices and long hours of extra work were required while preparing new routines.

Band Boosters paid for new outfits for the majorettes and also for the newly formed flag corp which performed at the State Fair and football games.

People

People . . . Fat, skinny, short, tall, red hair, black hair, white skin, red skin, and yellow skin, long hair and short hair. They come in countless shapes and sizes, and have a thousand different religious and political beliefs and convictions. How can a group of such varied differences be classified into one category? It's really very simple. Individuals are people. They make up high school English classes, and high school enrollments, and college universities, and nations. Look at these facts, and make your new beginnings start with new People.

Dreams and reflections fill minds of 1973 Senior class

The Senior class of 1973 had the distinction of being the first class to spend its entire high school career at Pendleton Heights. This class had been recognized for many achievements in scholastics, in athletics, and in service to the community. Thirty-one Seniors were inducted into honor organizations. Seniors Farrell Simmerman and Vic Malory were designated as Valedictorian and Salutatorian, respectively.

Senior Week brought this meaningful learning experience to a close. During this week, the class as a whole enjoyed many activities such as a Senior banquet and movie, a bowling party, a dance, and a trip to King's Island.

With commencement exercises came the fulfillment of a dream. Their basic education completed, Seniors could look forward to the future and say with confidence, "We've only just begun."

Juniors grow in responsibility and scholarship

When the Junior Class returned to school in September, the newness of classes and activities, in a modular system, had worn off. Organization of the class began with the election of a new set of officers and a new steering committee. Chosen to lead the class were Stu Mason, president; Scott Mellinger, vice-president; Lynn Huntzinger, secretary; and Karen Baker, treasurer. The officers began working on their major goals, the Junior-Senior Prom and raising money for future activities. In order to accomplish these, the Junior class had such projects as selling lightbulbs, magazine subscriptions, and collecting dues.

The class grew in scholarship and responsibility as time passed. On December 20, National Honor Society inducted 22 new members, 15 of these being Juniors. Juniors also assumed responsibilities by taking leadership offices in school organizations.

Sophomores generate spirit; sell spirit buttons

A sophomore is considered the "middle child" in the spectrum of high school family trees. Upperclassmen are constantly reminding him that he really isn't that much older than a Freshman, while faculty members expect him to "look ahead to the future and plan for the Senior year."

With these goals in mind, the sophomores turned salesmen, and used their persuasive powers to sell magazine subscriptions and "Arabian booster" buttons to finance the 1974 Junior-Senior Prom.

Class sweaters and rings were conventional trademarks of the sophomore class with red, white, and blue jackets filling the halls in early Fall.

The anticipation of the coming two years was sometimes frightening, sometimes exciting, but always developing, as the sophomores shaped their ideas and ideals for the future.

Freshmen biggest class yet to hit PHHS; confusion reigns

Beginning their first year at PHHS was the 350 strong Freshmen class. Being the largest class at PHHS, confusion of the first few weeks was intensified, as they tried to adjust to the new module schedule, their computerized class schedules and smaller lockers. But once the Freshmen got rolling, not even the "Mighty" Seniors could stop them. The Freshmen class added highly to school spirit this year by placing second in the Homecoming float competition, and by letting the upperclassmen know that they were at the pep sessions by putting the other classes to shame more than once. The Frosh were sponsored by Mr. Miller and Mrs. Dailey who aided in the selection of class colors and a class motto.

Many enjoyable times were sponsored by the Freshmen class as they put on a dance, a bicycle marathon for the Cancer Society, and a Freshmen class party.

After all their accomplishments and achievements the Frosh of '73 still couldn't be anything but Frosh to the student body. Freshmen retaliated though with their well-known cry of "Watch out for the Spirit of '76!"

Faculty members specialize as counselors, coaches, sponsors

In many cases, students acquainted themselves with the faculty of the school in only the classroom situation. But teachers, just like students, also had feelings, conflicts, and personal goals. In many cases their expression of these were used to benefit the students in the classroom.

Faculty members were active in such unusual activities as mountain climbing, scuba diving and showing horses.

Individual interests and hobbies at times related to courses of activities at school. Miss Gaddis participated in tennis tournaments in Indiana during the summer and sponsored GAA and the girl's tennis team throughout the school year. Miss Simmermon's position as pastor of a Firend's Church qualified her to instruct a class of Bible literature. Always pursuing more knowledge about her favorite language, Mrs. Phelps traveled through Spain and Morroco last June, and arranged a similar trip to Acapulco, Mexico for Spanish Club members to examine customs and language.

The qualities of a teacher, caring enough to listen to a student's problems, to coach him as an athlete, or to sponsor an extra-curricular activity were evident to those students who cared to notice.

Administration effects new policies; gains insight through discussions

In order to find out more about the different departments and classes, the school board set aside time at their meetings to hear the individual teachers explain their programs and techniques. Mr. Harold Smith, superintendent of the South Madison Community School Corporation, worked for smooth-operating efficiency among the integral parts of the corporation. The duties of the Board of School Trustees included an estimated budget of income and expenditures.

As principal of PHHS, Mr. Ernest Miller had many duties and responsibilities. He was the guiding force behind many of the policies brought about by the school board.

Along with the time-consuming tasks of being principal of Pendleton Heights, Mr. Ernest Miller this year assumed the additional responsibility of sponsoring the Freshman class.

Mr. Charles Mock handled all class schedules and course changes during the individual semesters. Mr. Mock could also be heard over the loud speaker giving announcements.

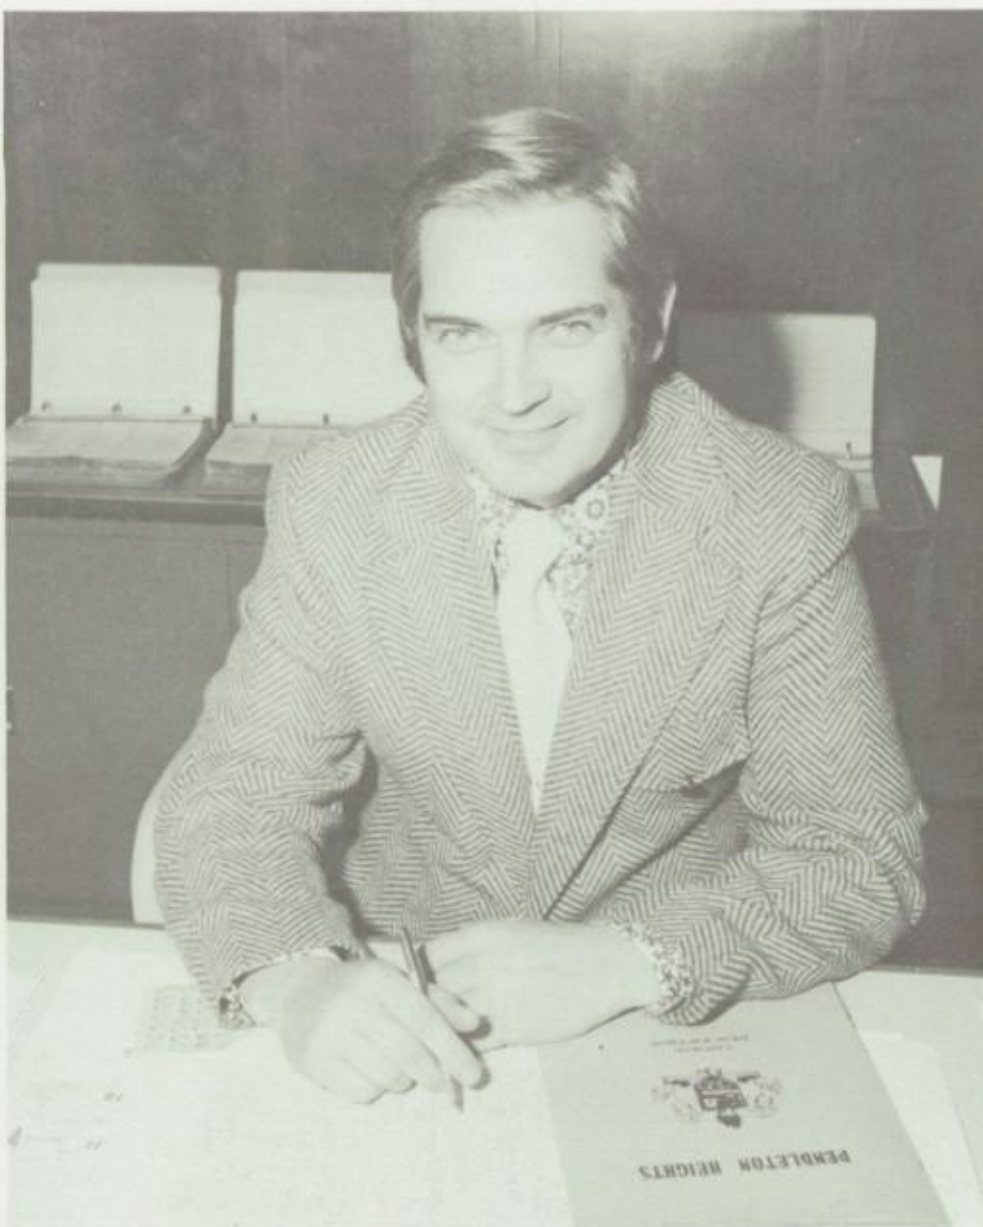

Mr. James Crosley was in charge of the scheduling of all athletic events and extra curricular activities at PHHS. Also included in his daily activities was planning money-making projects for clubs and organizations.

ABOVE: Mr. Smith examines the budget for the following school year.

RIGHT: Running a happy and smoothly running ship of learning, Mr. Ernest Miller, Principal, acts as leader and advisor to Students and faculty.

LEFT: Sporting a friendly and welcome smile, Mr. Crosley shows none of the strain that running the extracurricular activities can give.

Secretaries are an integral part of administration

Mrs. Rogers assisted in preparing student class lists and filed all orientation day records. She was in charge of all dictation, typed messages, worked on the switchboard, and gave simple interviews for business oriented students.

Working closely with the sponsors and the treasurers of large organizations of PHHS can be found very consuming as Mrs. Best found out every day. In addition to the ordinary treasurer's records, she kept an accurate account of all money received and paid out.

Mrs. Schug was a welcome addition to the faculty this year. She helped to lighten the load on the deans by keeping all attendance-records in order and by accepting or rejecting excuses for absence or tardiness. Mrs. Schug also gave permission to leave school and at times took students home.

RIGHT: Mrs. Peggy Rogers takes care of secretarial duties daily, among them, typing, filing, and bookkeeping.

BELOW RIGHT: Seniors Kim Ryan and Barb Rector assist Mrs. Schug in collecting and recording the attendance slips.

Service personnel maintain school order and quality

The Materials Center was found to be an abundant source of all types of literature. It was filled with classical and contemporary books, current and back issues of magazines, and daily newspapers. Film strips, the reader-printer, and encyclopedias helped to supplement research material.

Library passes were introduced this year for the students' use during study halls. This plan enabled students to leave the study hall in order to go to the library, without a teacher's pass.

The Materials Center was put to use at all times of the day. During the lunch mods, students were able to do some last minute studying, read newspapers or magazines, or just talk about current events.

Mrs. Wiley, the head librarian, and Mrs. Witt, a teacher's aid, assisted the students in checking out material, finding references, and keeping the library in top working condition.

A few persons seemed to go without much recognition for the major part of the year. These people worked as matrons, janitors, maintenance men, bus drivers, and cafeteria ladies.

During summer, Christmas, and spring vacations the maintenance personnel cleaned and polished the halls, rooms, and furniture in anticipation of the opening of school.

Through the school year these people labored to maintain surroundings as pleasant as possible.

CREDITS:

Dear Miss Webb,

Well, it is done! The 1973 Scimitar has gone to print, and we bet you thought it would never happen.

The credit goes to many people. First, to Mr. Glaze for his help, advise, and most of all, his type of patience and sense of humor. Our photographers, Mr. Ron Plum of Reid's Studios who suffered many hours of following us around the school to get activity shots, clubs, athletic groups, etc.; also, Mr. Doyle Fox who supplied us with underclass pictures.

Janet Marsh was invaluable. On our first big deadline, she worked with us, just as if she were on the staff, dedicated more than some of us to writing interesting and informative copy.

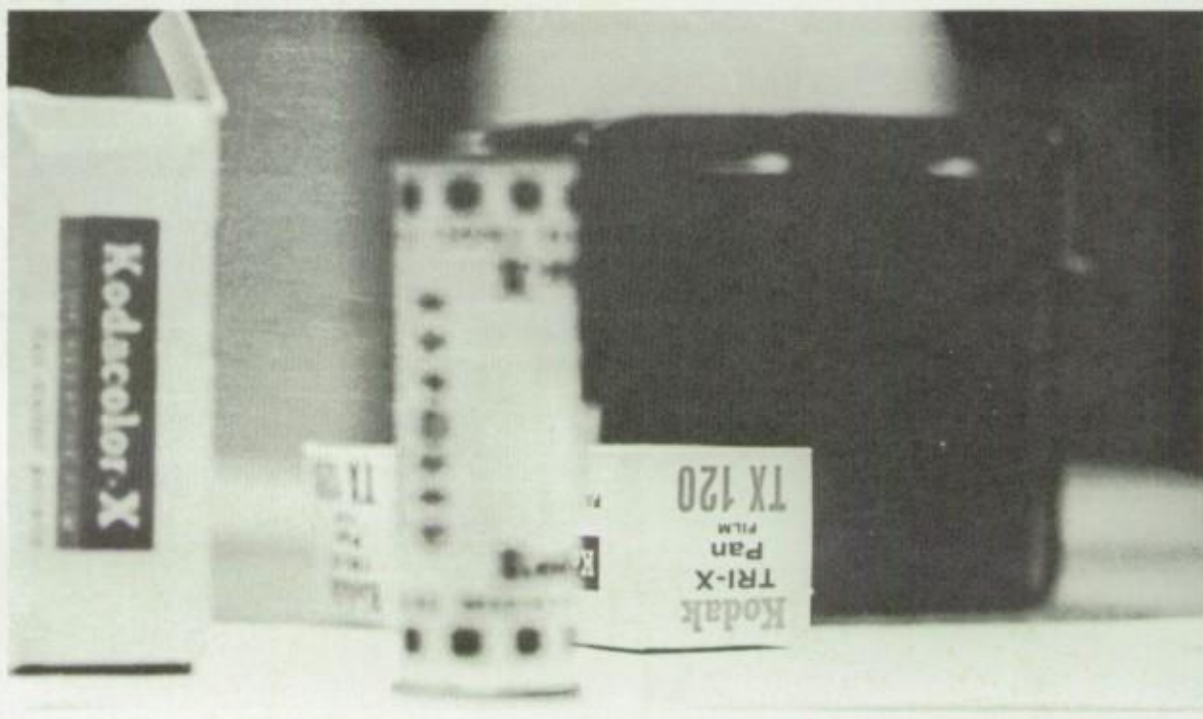

You know, there is a man down in the A-V department who assisted in our time of greatest need. Mr. Rankin trained some of his personnel to use cameras, develop film and print pictures. Without Dennis, Mark, and Sam, we might never have gotten some of the at-school candids that can be seen throughout the book.

But it was you who helped the most, stayed up those long hours to get us to meet our deadlines and finally to finish our project when it seemed impossible. Thank you for contributing your time and interest through every phase of turning our ideas into a reality.

The creating is done, the book is ready to be seen and read. We hope all who bought it will be as proud of it as we who put it together.

Thanks again to you, and to our staff.
